Agree to celebrate Decade of CPEC this year to showcase success

PARIS (APP): Prime Minister Muhammad Shehbaz Sharif on Friday met Chinese Premier Li Qiang here wherein the two sides agreed to celebrate the Decade of China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) this year to showcase its success. The meeting was held here on the sidelines of the Summit for a New Global Financial Pact.

It was the first in-person meeting between the two leaders since Premier Li assumed office in March this year. Expressing satisfaction at the steady development of CPEC projects in Pakistan, the two sides agreed on CPEC's centrality for Pakistan's socio-economic development and expressed their firm commitment to continue working together for realizing its shared objectives for the two countries.

The conversation was marked by traditional warmth and cordiality that has been the hallmark of Pakistan-China All-Weather Strategic Cooperative Partnership. During the meeting, the two leaders held an in-depth discussion on the entire gamut of bilateral relationship, including CPEC as well as economic cooperation.

Reiterating support to China on its core issues, the prime minister appreciated China's unflinching support to Pakistan's territorial integrity, sovereignty and socio-economic development. He noted that China's firm opposition to holding any G20 meeting in the disputed region of Jammu and Kashmir was a vivid reflection of China's principled stance for upholding international law and the United Nations resolutions.

In his remarks, Premier Li said the Pakistan-China friendship was unique and had withstood the vicissitude of time due to deep fraternal ties between the peoples of the two nations. He added that as a close neighbour and iron-brother, Pakistan occupied a special position in China's neighbourhood diplomacy and that China would continue its efforts for safeguarding Pakistan's core interests and for the economic development and prosperity of its people.

Asif hits back at joint US-India statement

ISLAMABAD (Online): Defence Minister Khawaja Asif on Friday rebuked the United States and India for issuing a joint statement calling on Pakistan to ensure that its territory is not used to launch extremist attacks.

Asif took strong exception to the statement as he pointed out "the irony of this statement coming during the visit of someone who was banned entry to the US for overseeing a pogrom of Muslims when he was CM Gujarat".

Lamenting the actions of Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi in a tweet, the minister said that "he leads yet another campaign of state-sponsored terrorism in Kashmir, which includes routinely maiming and blinding the local population".

"Across the rest of the country, Modi's acolytes lynch Muslims, Christians, and other minorities, with impunity," he added. The defence minister also stressed that "Pakistan has lost countless lives, and has been continuously at war with terrorism for decades now, owing to failed American interventions in the region".

"Perhaps President Biden should consider these facts the next time he fetes the Butcher of Gujarat," Asif said.

Ready to sign charter of economy, says Zardari

"I am ready to sign the charter of economy. I will give you a level playing field. We are rich not poor and those who think Pakistan is a poor state are fools."

Asif Ali Zardari said that he had also invited Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) chairman to sign the charter of economy. He asked the manufacurers to increase exports. "The increased price of dollar makes everything expensive. I am fully aware of issues being faced by traders and industrialists. We can stabilize the economy by enhancing exports." The PPP co-chairman claimed that they would increase exports to $100 billion. "We have to promote trade for the betterment of the economy. The common people will be able to pay taxes if their issues are addressed. We should focus on trade opportunities instead of aid." The former president said that ties between Saudi Arabia and Iran have improved and there are no more reasons left to further postpone the completion of the Pakistan-Iran gas pipeline project.

Hearings begin

Amidst a prolonged lull after months of political storms, a blockbuster Supreme Court case promises respite to those weary of the daily drudgery. Hearings commenced yesterday on a set of four petitions challenging the trial of ordinary civilians in military courts.

As has become custom, however, the court found it difficult to even begin without running into controversy. Shortly after the nine SC justices originally nominated by Chief Justice Umar Ata Bandial to hear the petitions convened on Thursday afternoon, senior puisne judge Justice Qazi Faez Isa excused himself, saying he could not consider the bench to have been 'legally' formed due to the pendency of a petition concerning the Supreme Court (Practices and Procedures) Act, which limits the chief justice's powers to constitute benches.

The bench was quickly reconstituted after excluding Justices Isa and Tariq Masood, the latter of whom had concurred with the former on the 'legality' of the bench. Fortunately, no other judge, petitioner or defendant objected to the new bench despite being offered a chance to do so, and one may now expect the hearings to proceed unhindered.

The matter before the court is undoubtedly of grave national import. It concerns the fate of dozens, if not hundreds, of citizens who face court martial over their alleged involvement in the vandalism of several military properties during riots that broke out following PTI chairman Imran Khan's arrest last month. The petitioners include notable lawyers like Aitzaz Ahsan and Latif Khosa, as well as former chief justice Jawwad S. Khawaja, whose involvement is a first by any retired chief justice in Pakistan's judicial history. They have presented more or less similar arguments: that the trial of civilians by military courts violates the constitutional rights guaranteed to the citizens of Pakistan and that, in any case, civilians should not be tried under the Army Act when ordinary courts are open and functioning.

It is noteworthy that the petitioners are not seeking any legal relief for the suspects: simply that they be tried in ordinary courts instead of military ones. It will be interesting to hear the counter-arguments from the attorney general of Pakistan, who will be defending the armed forces' demand, endorsed by the government, that all suspects be court-martialled. The SC has said it intends to keep its hearings short and wrap up the case as soon as possible. The matter may well prove a watershed for Pakistan's judicial history. At hand is the question of what jurisdiction military laws and courts have within the Pakistani legal and judicial system. For years, the lines have been blurred, leading to some grave miscarriages of justice. With the country going through a transformative period, now may be a good time to set fixed boundaries. May the law prevail.

Rashad Bukhari

The world is divided into two spheres, i.e. the 'House of Peace', which includes countries running their governance systems according to Islamic principles, and the 'House of War', where Muslims do not enjoy peace and security or are not free to practise their religion. This argument commonly used by extremists does not justify terrorism on any grounds. Those who back this opinion as a cover to commit acts of terror today are neither aware of its history nor the geopolitical context in which it emerged.

The two terms were first used by the eighth-century imam and jurist, Abu Hanifa. He had defined the House of Peace and House of War in the context of the political divisions of that time. These concepts had not been drawn from the Quran or hadith. For example, in response to the Mongol invasions of Muslim lands, 14th-century Islamic scholar Ibn Taymiyyah also used these terms to justify the use of force against the unjust and authoritarian rule of leaders if their aim was to re-establish a system of law based on Islamic principles. Against this backdrop, linking Islam with the informal decrees of that time does not qualify these concepts being used in today's circumstances.

Interestingly, the people claiming to perform acts of terrorism today in the name of Islam don't even consider Muslim-majority countries as being in the War or peace

House of Peace. According to them, since such countries do not fully implement Islamic laws, they do not fall in the category of the House of Peace. For them, the whole world is a House of War, thus they justify the killing of individuals in blatant disregard of Islamic principles. On the contrary, Islam clearly rejects the unlawful killing of civilians. The Quran says: "... If anyone kills a person — unless in retribution for murder or spreading corruption in the land — it is as if he kills all mankind" (5:32).

Muslim combatants cannot target or harm non-combatants. Caliph Abu Bakr Siddique is reported to have ordered his army in very clear terms: "Do not practise treachery or mutilation. Do not kill a young child, an old man, or a woman. Do not uproot or burn palms or cut down fruitful trees. Do not slaughter a sheep or a cow or a camel, except for food."

The Islamic view of international law, as defined by many Islamic jurists, puts nations into five categories, and governs behaviour towards each. In the first category fall Muslim-majority countries with Muslim rulers, considered part of the House of Peace, whether or not Islamic laws are implemented domestically. Nations with which these Muslim-majority countries engage in a temporary peace treaty fall into the second category, the 'House of Truce'. Their status is equal to those in the House of Peace, as long as a treaty is intact.

The third category, the 'House of Promise', includes countries with which there is a permanent peace treaty. The fourth category includes countries that are neither allies nor enemies. They are also subject to the treatment of nations in the House of Peace — including the rights to life, property, honour, and freedom for all, regardless of religion, language, or race.

The fifth and last category is the 'House of War'. It applies to states with which there is no peace treaty, which is currently at war with Muslim-majority states, and/or in which Muslims are unsafe. Some argue that this permits individual Muslims to use violence against these states or their inhabitants. Yet when it comes to nations in the House of War, there are rules of conduct.

In the Islamic view, no individual or group can declare war under any pretext. It is solely the prerogative of the state authority and only a last resort when all other options to restore peace fail. Islamic scholars need to take the responsibility to explain religious teachings and narratives contextualising modern thinking patterns and the challenges to states and societies in the form of extremism, violent extremism, and terrorism.

There is still light at the end of the tunnel that the tide of extremism can be controlled. The vulnerable youth, who are more prone to extremist rhetoric, have the religious justification to stand up to those falsely claiming to speak on behalf of Islam and restore its image as a peaceful religion. In this regard, the role of our policymakers is also more important since it is time to make legislation in the new context and implement the National Action Plan in letter and spirit. In fact, a fresh wake-up call to the nation to deal with this newly emerged wave of extremism, hidden in the garb of political activism, is the need of the hour. -- Courtesy Dawn

Promoting Inter-Provincial Harmony between Balochistan and Other Provinces

By Mehmood Ali

Inter-provincial harmony is a crucial aspect of fostering a united and progressive nation. In the context of Pakistan, Balochistan stands as a province rich in cultural diversity and untapped potential. However, it is imperative to acknowledge that true progress lies not in isolation but in the interconnectivity and collaboration among all the provinces. Promoting inter-provincial harmony, particularly between Balochistan and other regions is vital for fostering national unity, achieving sustainable development, and unleashing the full potential of this remarkable province.

Throughout history, divisions among provinces have hindered the realization of a united and harmonious Pakistan. Balochistan, with its unique geography and the distinct culture, has often faced challenges in bridging gaps with other provinces. It is time to break free from these historical constraints and recognize the immense value that Balochistan brings to the national fabric.

Cultural exchange and understanding are fundamental pillars in promoting inter-provincial harmony. Balochistan boasts a rich heritage, encompassing vibrant traditions, languages, and art forms. By actively engaging in cultural exchanges and promoting the diverse cultural expressions of Balochistan, we can bridge the gap of misunderstanding and get a sense of unity among all provinces.

Meanwhile, Balochistan is blessed with abundant natural resources, including minerals, gas and oil. However, the potential for economic development and prosperity can only be fully realized through collaborative efforts with other provinces. By encouraging investments and advancing partnerships between Balochistan and other provinces, we can leverage the collective strengths and resources, leading to sustainable economic growth and improved living standards for all citizens.

Moreover, connectivity plays a pivotal role in promoting inter-provincial harmony. Balochistan's strategic location makes it a gateway for regional connectivity and trade. Investments in transportation infrastructure, such as highways, railways and ports can enhance connectivity between Balochistan and other provinces, it will help in facilitating the movement of goods, services and public transport sector. These infrastructure developments are fully integrated into the fabric of our nation.

Furthermore, education acts as a powerful tool for building bridges and breaking down barriers. Balochistan has made significant strides in improving access to education but more can be done. By prioritizing quality education and knowledge sharing programs, we can empower the youth of Balochistan to compete on national and international level. Exchange programs, scholarships, and collaborations between educational institutions across provinces can cultivate a spirit of unity and create a platform for shared learning and growth.

Promoting inter-provincial harmony and building bridges between Balochistan and other provinces is an essential step towards a more united and prosperous Pakistan. It requires collective efforts from both the government and the citizens to enhance cultural understanding, encourage economic collaboration, develop vital infrastructure and invest in education and knowledge sharing. Only through such initiatives can we unlock the immense potential of Balochistan and ensure that its unique contributions are fully integrated into the fabric of our nation.

By embracing diversity and strengthening the bonds of inter-provincial harmony, we pave the way for a brighter and more inclusive future for Pakistan.

West Bank violence could spiral 'out of control': UN

Monitoring Desk
WEST BANK: The new outbreak of violence in the occupied West Bank could spiral out of control, the UN human rights chief warned on Friday. This week, at least 18 people have been killed in the territory — in incursions by the Israeli military or attacks by Palestinians or Jewish settlers. "These latest killings and the violence, along with the inflammatory rhetoric, serve only to drive Israelis and Palestinians deeper into an abyss," Volker Turk said in a statement. So far this year, more than 200 people have died in violence linked to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, the vast majority of them Palestinians. Deadly violence has flared in recent days in the northern West Bank, a stronghold of Palestinian armed groups where Israel has stepped up military operations. Turk said this week's violence was being fuelled by strident political rhetoric and an escalation in the use of advanced military weaponry by Israel. The UN High Commissioner for Human Rights said the sharp deterioration was having a terrible impact on both Palestinians and Israelis and called for an immediate end to the violence. He said international human rights law required Israeli authorities to ensure all operations are planned and implemented to prevent lethal force. Every death caused in such a context requires an effective investigation, he added. "Israel must urgently reset its policies and actions in the occupied West Bank in line with international human rights standards, including protecting and respecting the right to life," Turk said.

South Korea, Vietnam to boost work on North Korea nuclear threat

Monitoring Desk
HANOI: South Korea and Vietnam agreed on Friday to boost security cooperation, citing North Korea's nuclear threat, and committed to increasing bilateral trade and investment despite a slump this year and Vietnam's planned tax hikes on large firms. In his first visit to Vietnam as president, South Korean leader Yoon Suk Yeol acknowledged economic woes but reiterated Vietnam's key role for Seoul's growth strategy. He signed 17 agreements with Vietnam's President Vo Van Thuong on a number of issues, from critical minerals to Vietnamese workers in Korea, and said Seoul would step up cooperation with Vietnam against North Korea's nuclear threat. Vietnam is one of few countries which can boast close relations with Pyongyang. Vietnam "is ready to participate in the process of denuclearisation of the Korean peninsula", Thuong said in a joint press conference. The two nations also agreed to boost defence industry relations and security cooperation in the South China Sea. South Korea is one of many countries discussing possible arms sales to Vietnam as it seeks to modernise its arsenal. Korea and Vietnam over the last few decades have developed almost symbiotic industrial ties, with South Korea being the largest foreign investor in Vietnam. Seoul also enjoys the highest level of diplomatic relations with Hanoi, together with Russia, China and India. The leaders reiterated a goal of boosting bilateral trade, despite a slump so far this year driven by lower global demand for smartphones and other electronic goods that Korean firms assemble in Vietnam with many components shipped from Korea. "Although the business environment is difficult in recent years, we must find new opportunities in Vietnam, which is the centre of global supply chain reorganisation and an emerging consumer market," Yoon said. Bilateral trade has fallen by a quarter in the first five months of this year compared to the same period in 2022, with a nearly 30% drop in Vietnamese imports of South Korean products.

Biden says he sees 'no real consequence' to calling Xi a 'dictator'

Monitoring Desk
WASHINGTON: President Joe Biden said the blowback over his calling President Xi Jinping of China a "dictator" would not undermine recent diplomatic progress between Washington and Beijing. "The answer to your question is no," Biden said during a White House news conference on Thursday when asked if his comments were damaging to U.S.-China relations, dismissing the riff as "an incident that caused some confusion." "I don't think it's had any real consequence," Biden added. The president said he expects to meet with Xi "in the near term." Earlier Thursday, the Chinese Embassy said the country's ambassador to the U.S., Xie Feng, had made "strong protests" to senior White House and State Department officials. In a statement, Chinese Embassy spokesperson Liu Pengyu called the remarks "erroneous, absurd and irresponsible," and warned that the Chinese government "does not accept any political provocation against China's top leader and will resolutely respond." Biden's "dictator" remarks came Tuesday during a campaign fundraiser in California, suggesting China's leader was embarrassed because he did not know about the alleged Chinese spy balloon that had traversed the U.S. in February.

19 dead, thousands seek shelter in South Asia monsoon floods

Monitoring Desk
KATHMANDU: At least 19 people are dead after floods triggered by South Asia's annual monsoon, with a week of relentless rains forcing thousands of people to seek shelter in India. Floods are common and cause widespread devastation during the treacherous monsoon season, but experts say climate change is increasing their frequency, ferocity and unpredictability. The toll from flooding and landslides last weekend in Nepal had risen to 14 by Friday, with more than two dozen still missing, according to officials. "Search and rescue teams are still on the ground," Dhruva Bahadur Khadka, a spokesman for the country's national disaster authority, told AFP on Friday. Four others were killed after flooding in landslides in India's remote Himalayan state of Arunachal Pradesh near the Chinese border, disaster management authorities there said Thursday.

UN puts Russian forces on blacklist for killing children & attacking schools in Ukraine

Monitoring Desk
UNITED NATIONS: The United Nations put Russian forces on its annual blacklist of countries that violate children's rights in conflict for killing boys and girls and attacking schools and hospitals in Ukraine, according to a new report seen Thursday by The Associated Press. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said in the report to the Security Council that he is "appalled" by the high number of "grave violations" against children in Ukraine in 2022, "shocked" at the number of attacks on schools and hospitals, "concerned" by the detention of children, and "troubled" that some Ukrainian children have been transferred to Russia. The U.N. chief did not put Israel on the blacklist for grave violations against 1,139 Palestinian children, including 54 killings last year — as supporters had hoped. Instead, he welcomed Israel's engagement with the U.N. special envoy for children in armed conflict, Virginia Gamba and its "identification of practical measures including those proposed by the U.N." to protect children. Riyad Mansour, the Palestinian U.N. ambassador, told reporters Guterres "made a big mistake" in not listing the most extreme government in Israel's history. "It is very disappointing to the Palestinian people and to the Palestinian children," he said. In the wide-ranging report, the secretary-general said that last year children were disproportionately affected by conflict. He said the U.N. verified grave violations against 13,469 children, including 2,985 who were killed, in 24 countries and one region. "Grave violations" include the recruitment and use of youngsters by combatants, killings and injuries, sexual violence, abductions, and attacks on schools and hospitals.

Pakistan slams persisting campaign to portray self-determination struggle as terrorism

UNITED NATIONS (APP): Pakistan has underscored the need for distinguishing terrorism from the pursuit of peoples' legitimate right for self-determination, and called for resolving prolonged conflicts, ending foreign occupation to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism. There is a continued campaign to portray struggles for self-determination and national liberation as terrorism, in order to justify the oppression of peoples under foreign occupation," Ambassador Aamir Khan, deputy permanent representative of Pakistan to the UN, told the UN General Assembly.

Speaking during the 8th review of the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy (GCTS), the Pakistani envoy said it was essential to clearly define terrorism and distinguish it from legitimate struggles for national liberation and self-determination.

Ambassador Aamir Khan said Pakistan has been at the forefront of the fight against terrorism and has rendered innumerable sacrifices of more than 80,000 lives.

"Spoilers in our neighborhood continue to target us, including through support for attacks planned and orchestrated by the TTP, Da'esh as well as Baloch militant groups," the Pakistani envoy said. Pakistan, he added, possessed the capability and will utilize all means to defeat this externally-sponsored terrorism.

The United Nations, particularly the Security Council, must address situations of prolonged, unresolved conflicts and foreign occupation. Pakistan, along with OIC, made various proposals, including the condemnation of the acts by racist, fascist, and extremist right-wing elements to incite violence and terrorism against Muslims through the deliberate desecration of mosques and the burning of the Holy Quran, he said, adding that these were not included in the GCTS text.

"Failure to condemn acts of incitement and hatred sends a clear message that terrorism against Muslims will be tolerated," Aamir Khan added. Pakistan is also deeply disappointed over the failure to recognize the International Day to Combat Islamophobia, which was established through a consensus General Assembly resolution.

"Denying inclusion of this reference - another OIC proposal - while accommodating individual member states to reflect events the content of which was neither agreed upon by all member states nor supported, is a classic example of this discriminatory and biased approach. "This signifies the perpetuation of a perception that stigmatizes Muslims," he added. "We firmly reject this stigmatization and will continue its efforts to challenge this flawed perspective."

India deflecting attention from brutal repression of Kashmiri people: FO

ISLAMABAD (APP): India habitually used terrorism bogey to deflect attention from its brutal repression of Kashmiri people in Indian Illegally Occupied Jammu and Kashmir, and maltreatment of its minorities, said Foreign Office Spokesperson here on Friday.

Responding to media queries regarding the US-India Joint Statement of June 22, 2023, the Foreign Office Spokesperson said: "We consider the Pakistan-specific reference in the 'Joint Statement from the United States and India', issued on June 22, 2023, as unwarranted, one-sided, and misleading. The reference is contrary to diplomatic norms and has political overtones. We are surprised that it has been added despite Pakistan's close counter-terrorism cooperation with the US."

She said, "Pakistan has rendered unmatched sacrifices in the fight against terrorism. In laying down their lives, our law enforcement agencies and armed forces have set an example. People of Pakistan are the real heroes in this fight."

"The international community has time and again recognized Pakistan's efforts and sacrifices in the fight against terrorism. It has long concluded that terrorism can be defeated through concerted and cooperative actions. Today, we fail to see how the assertions made in the Joint Statement could strengthen the international resolve to fight terrorism. The statement shows that the cooperative spirit, so vitally needed to defeat the scourge of terrorism, has been sacrificed at the altar of geopolitical considerations," she continued.

"In addition to being a state-sponsor of terrorism, India habitually uses terrorism bogey to deflect attention from its brutal repression of Kashmiri people in Indian Illegally Occupied Jammu and Kashmir (IIOJK), and maltreatment of its minorities. It is thus completely ill-placed to cast any aspersions on Pakistan and its fight against terrorism."

The Spokesperson said, "Ironically, the Joint Statement fails to address the key sources of tension and instability in the region and to take cognizance of the grave human rights situation in the IIOJK."

This is tantamount to abdication of international responsibility."

Pakistan was also deeply concerned over the planned transfer of advanced military technologies to India, she noted adding such steps were accentuating military imbalance in the region and undermining strategic stability.

"They remain unhelpful in achieving the objective of durable peace in South Asia. We urge our international partners to take a holistic and objective view of the issues of peace and security in South Asia and refrain from endorsing one-sided positions," the statement concluded.
