Liberties lost

As Pakistan marks Human Rights Day today, it confronts a troubling panorama of human rights violations. Rights bodies, local and international, have consistently drawn attention to the country's abysmal record but to no avail. Despite constitutional guarantees, the reality for many Pakistanis is a pervasive sense of insecurity. The use of enforced disappearances as a tool against dissent is particularly alarming. With at least 2,210 unresolved cases, the state's role in these disappearances paints a picture of repression.

The failure to enact legislation criminalising enforced disappearances, despite repeated attempts, suggests a lack of political will at the highest levels. The cases of journalists Nafees Naeem, Arsalan Khan, Imran Riaz and Baloch student Bebagr Imdad, who were all abducted — some for months — and later released, highlight a disturbing trend of targeting critical voices.

Some progress was made, with safety laws for journalists passed first by the Sindh Assembly followed by the National Assembly in late 2021, but their implementation remains a distant dream. The curtailing of freedom of assembly and expression is another area of grave concern. The authorities' use of force to disperse peaceful protests, and the intimidation and arbitrary detention of protesters, all indicate shrinking space for civil liberties.

Religious intolerance continues to ignite violence, with blasphemy allegations leading to the lynching of both minorities and Muslims. The Supreme Court's warnings against the misuse of blasphemy laws are welcome, yet much more is needed to protect the vulnerable from societal prejudices.

Violence against women remains a pervasive issue. While the conviction of Zahir Jaffer for the murder of Noor Mukadam is a significant step, systemic changes are crucial for addressing the broader issue of genderbased violence. The lack of enactment of the Domestic Violence Bill speaks volumes about the state's failure to uphold women's rights. The rights of transgender individuals, despite legal recognition, continue to be ignored. The challenge to the Transgender Rights Act and the continued violence against this community reveal deep-seated societal and institutional biases. Torture and custodial deaths remain unchecked, and the passage of the Torture and Custodial Death Act, while a positive development, requires rigorous enforcement.

This bleak landscape of human rights is reflective of a deeper malaise affecting the country's democratic fabric. The manipulation of democratic processes, the establishment's shadow over political life, and the selective application of justice all contribute to an environment where human rights are easily trampled upon. As Pakistan prepares for national elections, it is imperative that these issues are brought to the forefront. The protection of human rights is not just a moral obligation but a prerequisite for a stable and functioning democracy. On this Human Rights Day, let Pakistan recommit itself to these ideals, not just in rhetoric but in concrete actions.

Mr. Sharif's past accomplishments in economic development and public infrastructure can be highlighted through a strategic public relations campaign. He could reach out to disenchanted segments of society, pledging accountability and reforms to address previous concerns. Civil society, recognizing his experience and the call for stability, might lend support. The establishment could opt for a working relationship based on mutual respect and com-over his ambitions, ensuring he holds a slim majority or no majority in Parliament, he might need to form a coalition government with members favored by the establishment. This would keep his government reliant on their support, keeping his authority in check.

Scenario B: Opposition factions and certain elements within the military consistently highlight Nawaz Sharif's past dismissals and allegations of corruption. They argue that his return to power could jeopardize national interests and financial integrity, reigniting past controversies and instability

Nawaz Sharif, during his tenure as Prime Min-

His political career was marked by moments of strained relations and power struggles with the military leadership. These confrontations often stemmed from differing approaches to governance, control over key policy decisions, and the exercise of authority. Sharif's attempts to assert civilian supremacy and consolidate power occasionally clashed with the military's influence and perceived interests, tion. leading to tense standoffs and moments of significant political instability

AJK PM says Kashmiris' to continue struggle till achievement of their cherished goal of freedom

Chaudhry Anwar ul Haq has said that India was committing serious violations of human rights in Occupied Jammu & Kashmir State. Prime Minister Haq expressed these views while addressing a seminar, which was organised by Kashmir Policy Research Institute to mark world human rights day in the federal metropolis on Sunday. Speaking on the occasion, the PM said that India can not suppress Kashmiris' legitimate struggle by the dint of force. He said that the Kashmiris' ongoing struggle for right to self determination would continue till they achieve their cherished goal of freedom from the Indian occupation.Referring to the Kashmiris' unwavering commitment to the noble cause, he said, "The torch of freedom shall remain alight as long as a single Kashmiri is alive". He said that Kashmiris can go to any extent to get their motherland freed from Indian occupation. He said that the hands of the Indian imperiprice of freedom has to be alism.

While condemning induction of a regime of new laws in Kashmir by the Indian government, he said that these laws were meant to change the region's demography and to convert Muslim majority into a minority in Kashmir. He said that India must realize that it cannot hold the Kashmiri nation hostage for a long on the basis of oppression.

India, he said, was trying to mislead the world. Drawing parallels between the sufferings of the

Senator Samina says: Vetoing the cease-fire resolution in Gaza is hostile to inhumanity

Independent Report QUETTA: Senator Samina Mumtaz Zehri has expressed her disappointment over the United Nations' disappointing perfor-mance regarding Palestine and America's once again vetoing the ceasefire resolution. She said that rejecting the ceasefire resolution in Gaza in the United Nations Security Council is tantamount to enmity against humanity.

Samina Senator Mumtaz Zehri said in her statement that the role of the United Nations is getting weaker and Israel and the United States seem to be dominating the United Nations, while the silence of the Muslim countries is beyond comprehension. She said that the martyrdom of innocent Palestinians in the recent attacks on Gaza and Khan Yunis is a moment of concern for international human rights organizations and a blot on the name of humanity. Despite invoking Article 99 to stop the ongoing human tragedy in Pal-estine, the UN Security Council has failed miserably in fulfilling its responsibility. Senator Samina Mumtaz Zehri further said that most of the population in Gaza and Khan Yunis have been displaced and there has been a severe shortage of food, fuel, water and medicines. Life in the holy land of Palestine is dying and the unwashed Palestinians, including children, elderly and women, are fighting for survival in hunger and thirst. She said that we should try again for the two-state solution as it is the only solution for lasting peace in the Holy Land.
