COAS says Army well aware of constitutional limits, expect same from others

General Munir says Article 19 clearly defines boundaries within which freedom of speech and opinions exist; Those flouting Constitutional restrictions on freedom of expression "can't point fingers at others".

RISALPUR (APP): The army is well aware of its constitutional limits and expects others to prioritise upholding the Constitution as well, Chief of Army Staff General Syed Asim Munir said on Thursday. "Those who blatantly disregard these limitations cannot point fingers at others," he said while addressing the passing out parade of the Pakistan Air Force. "Article 19 of the Constitution clearly defines the boundaries of freedom of expression." The Army Chief was addressing the passing out parade of the Pakistan Air Force. He said that the growing arms race was likely to disturb the balance of power in the South Asia region. The COAS said, "Advanced technologies, including artificial intelligence, robotics and quantum computing are changing the use of air power as well as expanding its scope. However, without a strong air force, a country is at the mercy of any aggressor." He said the Pakistan Air Force had always lived up to the expectations of the nation. It patrolled the airspace in all kinds of difficulties with unparalleled bravery and professionalism, a great example of which was demonstrated before all in February 2019. The Army Chief, while addressing the passing out of cadets, said, "You are the center of our hopes, the guardian of the skies and the guarantor of regional unity. You are expected to lead a life adorned with the virtues of character, courage and competence."

Headline Inflation decelerates further to 17.3% in April Lowest inflation rate in two years - result of hard work done by PDM-led govt: PM

Shehbaz directs provincial govts to ensure reduction in petroleum prices and enforce official food item prices

ISLAMABAD (APP): Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif on Thursday, declaring the downward trend of inflation as a welcome news for the people, said that the inflation falling towards the lowest level in two years was a sign of improvement in the economy. "This is the result of the hard work done during the 16 month-long government led by the Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM) and continued by the interim government," he said in a statement issued by the PM Office. The prime minister pointed out that the inflation rate had come down from the peak of 39% to 20% last month and then to 17% in the current month. He said bringing down the inflation rate was the top priority of the government. "With the support of Allah Almighty, the people will get more relief in coming days after increase in the economic activities." He expressed the hope that the people might also get more relief by further cut in the petroleum prices which were on the downward trend in the international market.

Punishing evaders

The FBR's decision to block mobile phone connections of more than half a million individuals who did not file federal tax returns for the tax year 2022-2023 indicates that the agency is stepping up its campaign against evaders. The FBR has issued a legally binding Income Tax General Order to mobile companies to disable the SIMs of 450,000 individuals who had earlier filed tax statements but did not do so last year. It has identified the remaining more than 50,000 tax delinquents through third-party data on their expenditures and consumption patterns. The punitive action comes after the tax evaders' failure to respond to notices and repeated reminders. But is this enough to ensure tax compliance? The FBR's action appears to be largely limited to those whose names are already in its database. Many will justifiably ask what is being done to expand the tax base itself. Under the law, any person earning an annual income of Rs600,000 or more, or owning a 1000cc car or a house is liable to file tax statements. However, less than 2pc of the population (4.5m persons) had filed their returns last year, down from 5.9m a year earlier. Besides, a very large number of filers do not show taxable income in their statements.

That the FBR has initiated action against non-filers amid reports that only 75 traders have registered themselves under the recently announced Tajir Dost Scheme, a voluntary tax compliance arrangement for retailers, underscores the difficulty in expanding a very narrow tax base. And yet, despite the tax agency's past failure to execute multiple effective initiatives to increase direct taxation to boost the nation's present tax-to-GDP ratio of below 9pc — one of the lowest in South Asia — we must keep our fingers crossed. Indeed, Pakistan's current political leadership is committed to implementing FBR reforms, digitising the tax system to plug leakages and eradicating corruption and massive tax exemptions to powerful business lobbies. The intentions are sound. But the government would need to go much beyond automation and an anti-corruption drive; a paradigm shift is needed to make the tax system equitable to attract private investment and spur economic growth.

In addition to bringing untaxed and undertaxed sectors such as real estate, agriculture, retail, and overseas remittances into the net, the government will have to curtail the number of indirect taxes and significantly reduce high tax rates if it wants to improve compliance. The abysmally low tax revenue as a ratio of the size of the economy is at the heart of one of the worst financial crises being faced by the country for the last two years. This problem cannot be tackled without broadening the tax net, and making the tax administration and regime conducive to investment and growth.

Peace pipe and war

F.S. Aijazuddin

The tripartite Iran-Pakistan-India Pipeline project (IPI) should have had a normal maturity, had it not suffered from a genetic defect. Physicians term it a complex disorder, which has mutations in two or more genes inherited from parents.

The IPI project could not have had a simpler geopolitical justification. Iran has proven natural gas reserves of about 1,200 trillion cubic feet, enough to last 162 years. Its needy neighbour Pakistan has natural gas reserves of only 18 tcf, enough for the next 12-15 years. India's offshore reserves of natural gas are to its east (40.6 per cent) and to its west (23.7pc). It made sense for India to look westwards, even if it involved Pakistan as an undependable intermediary.

Economics cried out for such a project. International politics, however, proved the malevolent spirit determined to curse its future.

Initially, in 1995, Iran, Pakistan and India signed an agreement which made Iran responsible for 1,180 kilometres of the IPI pipeline, Pakistan 705 km and India 850 km. The pricing of the product had been agreed at $4.937 per MBTU, linked to an average Japanese Crude Cocktail price.

The logical solution to ensure continuity of supply was for all three countries to have jointly owned the IPI project, through one corporate entity registered outside the three countries, with legal safeguards in place to prevent any of its members from renegeing on their obligations.

In 2008, however, India signed two major agreements with the US on nuclear energy and military cooperation. As a consequence, the following year, India withdrew from the IPI project.

Since then, the Iranian ans undeterred have completed their 1,172 km of the truncated pipeline from the South Pars gas field to the Iran-Pakistan border. Pakistan has yet to begin its section. The cost in 2012 was estimated at $1.8 billion. Its new cost is open to the heavens. A few years later, Pakistan pleaded a weak force majeure when it formally informed Iran that, as long as Tehran is subject to US sanctions, it could not start work on its end of the pipeline.

This year, Pakistan's interim government approved the construction of a token 80 km to Gwadar — a lame attempt to forestall Iran's threat to invoke up to $18bn of penalties for the delay. Iran has granted Pakistan until September 2024 to complete the remaining 625 km.

At the conclusion of the recent visit by the Iranian president Dr E. Raisi, a joint statement by both governments "reiterated the importance of cooperation in the energy domain, including trade in electricity, power transmission lines and [almost as an afterthought] the IP Gas Pipeline".

Pakistan, meanwhile, is searching for ways to wriggle under the forbidding door of US sanctions. At best, it can hope for a US waiver, which is rare but not impossible. The Pakistan Foreign Office maintains that Pakistan does not need a waiver. The petroleum minister contradicted this by admitting that it is "considering formally contacting the US government to request a waiver of sanctions".

The US has countered Pakistan's Janus stance through Donald Lu, the US assistant secretary of state named in the Imran Khan cipher case. He has testified that Pakistan has not yet applied for a waiver. He added that, even if granted, Pakistan would find it difficult to secure funding from international donors.

Pakistan is trapped between two options: crippling sanctions or prohibitive penalties, between an American devil and the deep Caspian Sea. What was once touted as a pipeline of peace has been re-engineered into an instrument of war.

The Pakistani public stands confused by the government's unconscionable reticence. No meaningful information is available in the public domain about the present status of the IP project — important, because it promised to provide enough gas to generate up to 5,000 MW (one-fifth of our present thermal capacity).

What will be the final cost of the IP project, and the sources of its funding? (Iran initially had offered a loan of $500 million.) Also opaque are the IP's achievable completion date, the price at which Iranian gas is to be supplied, safeguards and penalties for non-supply and non-off-take. A gas sales and purchase agreement was signed between Iran and Pakistan in June 2009, and an operations agreement in March 2010. Are they still operative? Factor in the downstream losses in defective transmission and dishonest distribution. In FY2022-23, 10 Discos averaged losses of 16.38pc.

In the mid-1970s, Iranian PM Amir-Abbas Hoveyda visited Islamabad. Passing some flowering roses in the Secretariat garden, his Pakistani hosts invited him to admire them.

He gave them a glance, and dismissed them with the aside: "Yes, it is all a matter of priorities." Had the President Raisi come to Islamabad last week to task us to determine our priorities? — Courtesy Dawn

Journalists in Gaza

Sa'adia Reza

"For nearly three months when I was still inside Gaza, every single day when the night came, I looked at myself and I said, 'I survived this day.'" Palestinian journalist Youmna Elsid's words reflect what every journalist in the Gaza Strip experiences while reporting from the war-torn enclave.

In a span of around 200 days since Israel launched the attack on Gaza, at least 100 journalists have lost their lives, as per the Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ). The committee notes that as of April 20, 16 journalists were reported injured, four were reported missing, and 25 were reported arrested. In other words, on average one journalist, if not more, has been killed every two days since war broke out on Oct 7 last year.

Given the unprecedented number, Gaza has become the most dangerous place for media workers and journalists; the deadliest war for reporters since CPJ started gathering data in 1992.

The Israeli restriction on international media in Gaza has forced civilians including journalists, content creators, freelancers and influencers to document the horrific atrocities of the war. No age has been young enough to report on the genocide, as proved by nine-year-old Lama Abu Jamous and 17-year-old Abboud who bravely continue to tell the world about the suffering of their people. These and many others have been the storytellers as tragedies in the Strip continue to unfold. More importantly, the content coming out of Gaza has served as a massive tool to counter the soft and biased narrative adopted by many Western media organisations.

However, in stark contrast with other war zones, journalists in Gaza have zero protection against any casualties while they cover the genocide in high-risk zones in the face of disrupted communication, war-related trauma and hunger and starvation, and more importantly, the constant danger to their lives and families.

Palestinian journalists have time and again highlighted the vulnerability of media workers in Gaza, citing several incidents where they, along with their families, have been targeted. These include Al Jazeera's Wael al-Dahdouh's family which was killed in two air strikes, while he himself was critically injured. Several family members of Ali Jadallah, photojournalist at Turkish Anadolu Agency, were also killed when Israeli strikes hit their home early in the war.

But perhaps one of the most shocking examples of the plight of Gaza journalists emerged on Dec 15 last year, when Al Jazeera's cameraman Samer Abudaqa was killed in an Israeli drone strike while covering a bombing in Khan Younis. According to reports, Abudaqa bled to death over five hours, while he was denied emergency treatment as Israeli forces did not permit ambulances and rescue workers to reach him in time.

Reporting on war is never easy. But for those in Gaza, the trauma of human suffering, bloodshed, sheer mental exhaustion, and the fear that the next fatality they report could potentially be a loved one are inscapable. Moreover, the struggle to cover the war while, at the same time, trying to meet basic everyday needs — given the extremely limited supply of humanitarian aid — is a reality that's hard to imagine. Like all civilians in the Strip, journalists too have had to battle against hunger, thirst, mental and physical pain, and, often times, forced to make a choice between putting down the microphone or camera and focusing on finding a means to survive.

Understandably, a few took off their press vest for good when the need for safety and scavenging for food and other necessities took precedence over the day-to-day reportage. Some, like photojournalist Motaz Azaiza, evacuated to try to campaign for a ceasefire and show the world the realities of the war from outside the Strip.

These are people who have witnessed first-hand the heart-breaking scenes of babies being killed, of decomposed bodies unearthed in hospital compounds, of houses crumbling under air strikes. They have heard the wails of grieving mothers, of people pleading to be rescued from under the rubble, the screams of children losing their limbs without anaesthesia. These are not the experiences that one can erase from one's memory easily, and the toll it took on their mental health is both profound and lasting.

The world owes these men, women and children whose powerful narrative and selfless desire to expose the truth has woken us to the situation in Gaza and let to global pro-Palestine protests. This is not the war they chose to report on, and certainly this is not the life they imagined for themselves. Yet, their motivation and determination to document a war that seems to have no end, is inspiring. To quote someone on social media, "not all heroes wear capes; some also come in press vests". — Courtesy Dawn

WWF-Pakistan rolls out regenerative agriculture practices initiative

ISLAMABAD (APP): WWF-Pakistan, with catalytic funding from Laudes Foundation, launched the Regenerative Production Landscape Collaborative (RPLC) Pakistan to drive new business models and farming practices that holistically tackle current challenges faced by smallholder farmers and address the environmental issues resulting from unsustainable practices.

Supported by textile and food brands, RPLC Pakistan will be implemented in the Jhang and Sahiwal districts of Punjab and Barkhan and Lasbela districts of Balochistan. The initiative offers a demonstrable approach to landscapes that has already seen success in India, Brazil and Tanzania.

Speaking at the launch event, Director General, WWF-Pakistan, Hammad Naqi Khan shared that the initiative addresses the long-term challenges of unsustainable agricultural practices in Pakistan. Highlighting that agriculture faced major issues of excessive use of water, chemicals and pesticides impacting the crop and soil productivity, which was further aggravated by climate change, he noted that this has led to increasing vulnerabilities of local communities and smallholder farmers. "To address these challenges, this initiative will enhance collaborative actions and develop innovative strategies which help farmers to develop climate resilience and improve the agricultural yield", he added. Addressing the workshop virtually, Head of the Fashion Programme at Laudes Foundation, Anita Chester said, "Laudes Foundation is incredibly pleased to see the RPLC launch in Pakistan supporting the local ecosystem towards sustainable and regenerative practices.

Enhancing digital payment ratio urged as 90% retail trade undocumented

ISLAMABAD (INP): The retailers expressing concern over the slow progress in documenting the retail trade due to stagnation of both the FBR-POS integration of tier-1 businesses and Tajir Dost drive to register small traders, have said that this slow progress is primarily due to lack of sustained consultation with the private sector, inconsistent policies and increasingly complex procedures. So, a clear five-year roadmap is the need of the hour instead of ad-hoc measures, they added. They said that the share of digital payments can be gradually brought up to 50% of the retail trade's contribution to the annual GDP, estimated to be upwards of Rs12 trillion. Currently, an estimated 90% of the retail trade is undocumented and undertaxed. Whereas, based on a reduced GST rate of 5% on only Rs2 trillion, Rs100 billion can be generated in indirect taxes and an additional sum in direct taxes, which is more than is currently collected.

JUI-F rejects political victimization of govt employees in Tank

TANK (APP): Former MPA Mehmood Ahmad Khan Bettani on Thursday blamed PTI Tank's selected representatives for initiating retaliatory actions against government employees, burying their righteous policy in the process. He claimed that workers and supporters of Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam Fazl (JUI-F) were never intimidated by such tactics, asserting that transfers and postings were part of the job, whether in Chitral, Peshawar, or even outside the country. He made these remarks in a statement, refuting the notion that JUI, during its tenure, ever resorted to vindictive measures.

He emphasized that no party, including PTI, should view political transfers as retribution. He further expressed the confidence that such actions would only strengthen JUI's resolve, stating that their workers would not retreat.

BINP-A golden window of opportunity for unemployed graduates

PESHAWAR (APP): The Prime Minister's Bilkaitir Naujawan Internship Programme (BINP) 2024 offers a monthly stipend of up to Rs. 40,000 along with professional training lasting from six months to one year in a public sector entity to 60,000 unemployed graduates and postgraduate students.

This initiative has brought immense joy to the deserving recipients, who view it as a great blessing.

"Rs30,000 to Rs40,000 per month stipend plus technical training for six months to one year to an unemployed graduate or diploma-holder means a lot for internees besides providing them launching pad to excel in practical life", Ehtisham Kaiser, 24, who clinched BS 4 years degree in Urdu Literature told APP while filing the BINP form in the University of Peshawar campus.

"Why should I miss such a great opportunity when the federal government is showering its blessing on me", said the motivated graduate with a smile on his face when asked.

"I think it is a great opportunity for fresh-graduate and postgraduate students of Pakistan including Khyber Pakhtunkhwa who will not only get first-hand experience by remaining among the top professionals in various public sector organizations but will also financially support their families in the wake of price hike," said the Nowshera born citizen who clinched BS Urdu literature degree with distinction from Govt College Peshawar.

"Most of my classmates have applied for availing the great opportunity and he came to the university campus to submit my online application today," he said.

Like Ehtisham, a large number of eligible students qualified recently from universities and colleges of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa including UET Peshawar, Agriculture University, Govt Colleges, Islamia College Peshawar and the University of Peshawar have welcomed the Prime Minister Internship program and started filling applications forms online. The unique paid internship program would help 60,000 graduates of Pakistan in the transformation of their professional careers.

People from every walk of life have appreciated the landmark program and termed it a milestone of injecting fresh blood as internees that would certainly create positive effects on the overall performance of the organization and polish the talent of selected internees.

"I welcome the PM BINP as it would boost up the careers of hundreds of thousands of educated youth," said Professor Dr Naveed Farooq of Abdul Wali Khan University Mardan.

He stressed that the students of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa including merged areas take full advantage of the golden opportunity and apply it online. He said the paid internship would not only groom the graduate and postgraduate students in shaping their careers but would also help him to move into a knowledge-driven society.

US can't support Rafah assault, Blinken tells Israel

Monitoring Desk
ASHDOD: US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said he has still not seen a plan for Israel's planned offensive on the southern Gaza city of Rafah that would protect civilians, repeating that Washington could not support such an assault.

Blinken and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu met in Jerusalem for two-and-a-half hours, after which Israel repeated that the Rafah operation would go ahead despite the US position and a stark UN warning that it would lead to "tragedy".

"We cannot, will not support a major military operation in Rafah absent an effective plan to make sure that civilians are not harmed and no, we've not seen such a plan," Blinken told reporters.

"There are other ways, and in our judgment better ways, of dealing with the ... ongoing challenge of Hamas that does not require a major military operation in Rafah," he said, adding that it was the subject of ongoing talks with Israeli officials.

US Democrats press Biden to prevent Israeli assault on Rafah

Monitoring Desk
WASHINGTON: US President Joe Biden's administration faced renewed pressure from his fellow Democrats to influence Israel not to launch a full-scale invasion of Rafah, the city where almost half of the Gaza Strip's 2.3 million people have taken refuge.

Fifty-seven of the 212 Democrats in the House of Representatives signed a letter calling on the administration to take every possible measure to dissuade Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government from an all-out assault on the city near the Egyptian border. "We urge you to invoke existing law and policy to immediately withhold certain offensive military aid to the Israeli government, including aid sourced from legislation already signed into law, in order to preempt a full-scale assault on Rafah," said the letter, dated Wednesday.

The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment on the letter, which was led by Representatives Pramila Jayapal and Madeleine Dean.

Biden's support for Israel in its war against Hamas has emerged as a significant political liability for the president, particularly among young Democrats.

Colombia cuts diplomatic ties with Israel

Monitoring Desk
BOGOTA: Colombian President Gustavo Petro said his country will sever diplomatic ties with Israel, whose leader he described as "genocidal" over its aggression in Gaza.

"Tomorrow (Thursday) diplomatic relations with the state of Israel will be severed... for having a genocidal president," Petro told a May Day rally in Bogota, referring to Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Petro has taken a critical stance on the Gaza assault. In October, just days after the start of the crisis, Israel said it was "halting security exports" to Colombia after Petro accused Israeli Defence Minister Yoav Gallant of using language about the people of Gaza similar to what the "Nazis said of the Jews."

Israel, one of the main providers of arms to Colombia's military, then said it was "halting security exports" to the South American country as the diplomatic feud escalated.

Bogota subsequently demanded Israel's envoy leave the South American country.

Petro, Colombia's first leftist president, has also asserted that "democratic peoples cannot allow Nazism to reestablish itself in international politics." In February, he suspended Israeli weapons purchases after dozens of people died in a scramble for food aid in the war-torn Palestinian territory — an event he said was "called genocide and recalls the Holocaust."

Colombia's armed forces, engaged in a decades-long conflict with leftist guerrillas, rightwing paramilitaries and drug cartels, use Israeli-made weapons and aircraft.

Death toll from south China road collapse rises to 48

Monitoring Desk
GUANGDONG: The death toll from a highway collapse in southern China's Guangdong province has risen to 48 as rescue work continues, state media said on Thursday.

Heavy rains caused a stretch of road from Meizhou city towards Dabu county to cave in at around 2:10am local time on Wednesday, according to state news agency Xinhua.

Vehicles careened into the nearly 18-metre-long gash in the tarmac and plummeted down the steep slope below. Guangdong, a densely populated industrial powerhouse, has been hit by a string of disasters attributed to extreme weather events in recent weeks.

The storms have been much heavier than expected this time of year and have been linked to climate change.

Khamenei opposes Arab-Israel ties

Monitoring Desk
TEHRAN: Iran's supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said on Wednesday efforts underway to forge a normalisation of ties between Israel and Arab countries will not resolve the crisis in the Middle East.

"Some people think that by forcing neighbouring countries to normalise their ties (with Israel) the problem will be solved," said Khamenei.

"They are wrong," Khamenei's remarks came after US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said Washington is nearly ready with a security package to offer Saudi Arabia if it normalises relations with Israel.

Saudi Arabia had been in talks over a potential normalisation with Israel but they were paused when the Gaza crisis broke out. Regional tensions have soared since the start of the Israeli aggression, drawing in Iran-backed groups in Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, and Yemen.

The Islamic republic backs Hamas, but has denied any direct involvement in the group's attack on arch-foe Israel.

Iran does not recognise Israel and has made support for the Palestinian cause a centrepiece of its foreign policy since the 1979 Islamic revolution.

UK to vote in local elections as Tories brace for big losses

Monitoring Desk
LONDON: Millions of voters in England and Wales will cast their ballots on Thursday in an array of local elections that will be the last big test before a UK general election that all indicators show will see the Conservative Party ousted from power after 14 years.

Prime Minister Rishi Sunak will hope he can point to successes, notably in a couple of key mayoral races, to douse talk that the Conservative Party will change leader again before the United Kingdom's main election, which could take place as soon as next month.

More debris in Gaza than Ukraine, says UN

Monitoring Desk
GENEVA: Gaza stands filled with more debris and rubble than Ukraine, the UN stated on Wednesday. The mammoth task of clearing it has been made all the more costly and dangerous in the face of the sheer amount of asbestos and unexploded ordnance.

Six months into the Israeli aggression, the United Nations Mine Action Service (UNMAS) has estimated the amount of debris in the Gaza Strip, at 37 million tonnes in mid-April, or 300 kilogrammes per square metre.

"Gaza has more rubble than Ukraine, and to put that in perspective, the Ukrainian front line is 600 miles (nearly 1,000 kilometres) long, and Gaza is 25 miles (40 km) long," said the head of the UNMAS programme in the Palestinian territories, Mungo Birch.

However, the

UNMAS says the volume of rubble is not the only problem.

"This rubble is likely heavily contaminated with UXO (unexploded ordnance) but its clearance will be further complicated by other hazards in the rubble" Birch told journalists in Geneva.

"There's estimated to be over 800,000 tonnes of asbestos, for instance, alone in the Gaza rubble." The carcinogenic mineral used in construction requires special precautions when handling.

It is generally estimated that 10 to 15 per cent of the munitions fired do not explode on impact and therefore manifest a lasting danger for civilian populations.

Birch stated he is optimistic that the UNMAS, which works to mitigate the threats posed by all types of explosive ordnance, will become the coordinating body for mine action in Gaza.

Biden blames China, Japan and India's economic woes on 'xenophobia'

Monitoring Desk
WASHINGTON: President Joe Biden said on Wednesday that "xenophobia" from China to Japan and India was hobbling their growth, as he argued that migration has been good for the US economy.

"One of the reasons why our economy's growing is because of you and many others. Why? Because we welcome immigrants," Biden said at a Washington fundraising event for his 2024 re-election campaign and marking the start of Asian American, Native

Hawaiian, and Pacific Islander Heritage Month.

"Why is China stalling so badly economically, why is Japan having trouble, why is Russia, why is India, because they're xenophobic. They don't want immigrants. Immigrants are what makes us strong."

The International Monetary Fund forecast last month that each country would see its growth decelerate in 2024 from the year prior, ranging from 0.9 per cent in highly developed Japan to 6.8pc in emerging India.

More than 120,000 take part in May Day protests across France, dozens arrested

Monitoring Desk
PARIS: French police said they arrested 45 people in Paris and that 12 officers had been injured during traditional May Day protests, though the demonstrations were far more subdued than last year. Riot police used tear gas and batons to disperse some of the demonstrators.

Police put the number of protesters in the French capital at about 18,000, though the hard-left CGT union put the figure at around 50,000.

Ahsan spearheads strategic review of Federal PPP Policy

ISLAMABAD (APP): Minister for Planning, Development and Special Initiatives Professor Ahsan Iqbal on Thursday chaired a meeting at the Planning Commission to review the Federal Public-Private Partnership (PPP) Policy.

The meeting was attended among others by Minister for Petroleum and Water Resources Musadik Malik, Minister for Maritime Affairs Qaiser Ahmed Sheikh, Professor of Economics & Strategy Dr Nadeem Javaid, Member Social Sector Raffi Ullah Kakar and CEO of the PPP Authority (P3A) Malik Ahmad Khan besides consultants from the Asian Development Bank, a news release said.

Reforms in FBR gov't's top priority for economic revival: Law Minister

ISLAMABAD (APP): Minister for Law and Justice, Senator Azam Nazeer Tarar Thursday said that as per the vision of the Prime Minister, it was the top priority of the incumbent government to introduce reforms in Federal Board of Revenue (FBR) to address economic crisis. Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif is leading the entire reform process in this regard, he said while addressing a press conference here.

The minister highlighted that currently, tax cases pertaining to the recovery of more than Rs2700 billions were pending in courts, which should be concluded early. The parliament, he said, for the first time has legislated on tax tribunals in order to not only expedite the process but also make it efficient. Under the law, cases of Rs 20 million will go to the Commissioner while the cases above this will go to the Tribunal, he added.

Azam Nazeer Tarar said that some postings and transfers have been made in the FBR and more are expected in the coming days with strict adherence to merit. Competent officers with good repute were being brought in front so the policies would be implemented efficiently, he said, adding that changes were not being made to declare anyone corrupt. He said that transfers would also be made in customs office to streamline the system and its effects would also go to the lower level.

He said that steps were also being taken to expand tax net, recoveries, income tax collection and stop electricity theft in the country so that this money could be used for the welfare of the public.

PM for enhancing bilateral cooperation with Azerbaijan in various areas

ISLAMABAD (APP): Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif on Thursday stressed the need to work together with Azerbaijan to enhance trade and investment, energy cooperation, defence, connectivity, education and cultural exchanges, and people-to-people contacts.

The prime minister said that he intended to send a high level ministerial delegation to Baku for enhancing bilateral cooperation between the two countries.

Pakistan, he said, was also prepared to convene the Pakistan-Azerbaijan Joint Commission meeting at an early date where both sides could discuss matters related to cooperation in various fields.

The prime minister was talking to Ambassador of Azerbaijan to Pakistan Khazar Farhadov who called on him.

The ambassador briefed the prime minister on the current state of bilateral relations, highlighting the recent inauguration of flights between Baku and Karachi, in addition to the flights already operating between Baku and Islamabad as well as Baku and Lahore. He said that the Foreign Minister of Azerbaijan was also expected to visit Pakistan later this month. He also briefed the prime minister on various institutional mechanisms and their upcoming meetings later this year.

While admiring the beauty of the city of Baku, Prime Minister Shehbaz said that he wanted to replicate the beautification of Baku in Islamabad and suggested that both cities could explore enhanced cooperation through sister city agreement among them.

He emphasized that Pakistan attached great importance to Azerbaijan as the two countries enjoyed excellent brotherly relations. He conveyed his greetings for President Ilham Aliyev and fondly recalled their telephonic conversation on Eidul Fitr.

He also recalled his interactions with the leadership of Azerbaijan during his visit to Baku in June 2023 and reiterated his invitation to President Aliyev to undertake an official visit to Pakistan at his earliest convenience. The prime minister congratulated Azerbaijan on being selected as the host city for the COP 29 Summit meeting that would be held in November 2024 and said he looked forward to receiving the Minister of Ecology of Azerbaijan next week.

Pak calls for sweeping reform of 'unequal' int'l financial system

UNITED NATIONS (APP): Pakistan Wednesday called for sweeping reform of the international financial system to allow for low-income countries vulnerable to climate impacts to receive adequate help from richer nations.

"The highest priority for us must be to promote more rapid and equitable development, by seeking urgent support for the developing countries and the reform of the partial and unequal international financial, trade and technology regime to respond to the needs of developing countries," Ambassador Munir Akram told the Ninth Session of the Expert Mechanism on the Right to Development.

The Expert Mechanism provides the Geneva-based Human Rights Council with thematic expertise on the right to development in searching for, identifying and sharing best practices with Member States and promotes the implementation of the right to development worldwide.

"We believe that while states have the primary responsibility to promote human rights, the UN system and International Financial Institutions have a collective responsibility to align the international economic and development policies in ways that helps in the realization of the right to development," the Pakistani envoy said. In this context, he underscored the importance of balanced promotion of all human rights, while stressing the need for a conducive environment to realize the fundamental right to development. Ambassador Akram said that developing countries were unable to make requisite resources for health and education available because of high indebtedness.
