Regarding bilateral ties, the envoy reiterated Sri Lanka's commitment to strengthening relations with Pakistan across multiple fronts, including trade, tourism, and defense. He pointed out Sri Lanka's pivotal role as an international transshipment hub, particularly for mega-container ships like the Triple E-Class, which cannot dock at all ports due to their size. He anticipated that the operationalization of Gwadar Port would provide Pakistan with significant revenue opportunities, particularly for transit trade to Central Asian Republics (CARs).

Reflecting on the historical camaraderie between the two nations, Admiral Wijegunaratne recalled Sri Lanka's steadfast support for Pakistan during critical junctures, including provid-

Political prerogative

On the question of national security at least, the PTI is willing to lend an ear to the government. The party's decision to participate in a political stakeholders' conference on Operation Azm-i-Istehkam, confirmed to the media by the PTI's incarcerated chief Imran Khan on Friday, has been welcomed by the PML-N-led government and is being seen as a significant development with respect to the prospects of the proposed military action.

Central to the agenda of the Government has been economic revitalizavelopment. In its initial 100 days, the government has taken significant strides to enhance the economic sential healthcare services landscape. Key initiatives have been introduced, particularly in the agricultural sector, to capitalize on the province's abundant potential. One notable initiative includes the Government of Balochistan's decision to convert all agricultural tube wells to solar energy, effectively reducing electricity costs for farmers.

Additionally, groundbreaking change in the procurement process for grain seeds has been announced, where farmers will now receive payments instead of grain seed supplies—a move aimed at empowering farmers and ensuring more efficient agricultural practices. the province's progress and development efforts. However, the journey has not been without its challenges. The Government of Balochistan faces several significant hurdles that impact its governance, development, and socioeconomic progress. One of the most pressing challenges is the law and order situation. Balochistan has been grappling with security issues for years, including insurgency, attacks on infrastructure, and civilians. The year 2024 has witnessed an increase in violence, with over a dozen attacks resulting in approximately 50 fatalities and scores more injuries. This security situation not only poses a regional challenge but also has broader implications for Pakistan's stability, relations with neighboring countries, and economic aspirations, particularly concerning projects like the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC). Despite increased budget allocations for security forces in the PSDP 2024-25, addressing these challenges requires a comprehensive approach that addresses both the economic and political dimensions of the problem. Economically, Balochistan faces significant challenges such as high unemployment rates, limited industrialization, and under-women can actively con- conditions. Recent floods, tribute to and benefit from exacerbated by continuous rains in April 2024, resulted in the loss of seventeen lives and injuries to twenty-four individuals, as reported by the National Disaster Management Authority (NDMA). These incidents underscore the urgent need for proactive measures, including awareness campaigns and best practices to mitigate the effects of climaterelated disasters. Additionally, political instability and governance issues such as corruption and bureaucratic inefficiencies pose significant obstacles to effective governance and public service delivery in Balochistan. Addressing these challenges requires systemic reforms, transparency measures, and improved governance practices to enhance accountability and responsiveness to citizen needs.

Balochistan faces a myriad of challenges across governance, security, economic, environmental, and social dimensions. Overcoming these hurdles and unlocking the province's full potential for development and prosperity demands proactive and coordinated efforts. Addressing these challenges necessitates sustained political determination, institutional reforms, and comprehensive strategies that emphasize transparency, accountability, and efficient resource management. #### Chinese investment

Aizaz Ahmad Chaudhry

Since 2015, China has invested billions of dollars opment? Opinions vary. Most people feel that smaller segment is sceptical, arguing that these investments have contributed to Pakistan's debt trap. A dispassionate analysis is needed.

When President Xi Jinping visited Pakistan in April 2015 to launch CPEC, Pakistan was in the way in North Waziristan. In 2016, the US, India and Afghanistan commenced efforts to isolate Pakistan diplomatically. Natural--ly, no country

An early CPEC harvest was the reduction in electricity shortage and load-shedding, which had made everyday life difficult and had choked industrial production. The other benefit was an improved road infrastructure. Work was also initiated on Gwadar port and allied projects, many of which have since been completed.

Under the grand design, once energy shortages

had been met and infrastructure developed, Pakistan was supposed to move industrialisation phase, for on establishing special economic zones. However, we failed to seamlessly transit to the second CPEC phase for two reasons. One, the development of SEZs was inordinately delayed.

Consequently, Chinese industry shifted to other countries in the region. Two, from 2017 onwards, Pakistan entered into another round of political instability. Chinese confidence for investing in Pakistan was shaken gravely. The investments that were once expected to rise to $92bn tapered at around $26bn.

The present government has decided to upgrade CPEC. During Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif's visit to China last month, the Chinese side agreed to boost industrialisation in Pakistan, digitise the economy, and open new corridors for growth, livelihood, innovation, and the green economy. Decisions were taken to rehabilitate the Karakoram Highway, optimise the port at Gwadar, and train Pakistani experts in tech and agriculture. This is a welcome agenda. However, there are big challenges to its implementation. First, evolving geopolitics, particularly the US-China competition, is making it difficult for Pakistan's policymakers to strike a delicate balance in its ties with the US, which is a destination for large Pakistani exports, and China, whose investments and financial help are important. The US is doing all it can to check China's economic rise through trade tariffs, investment curbs, and export controls, and is advising allies and friends to avoid Chinese

The second challenge is the security of Chinese personnel working on China-assisted projects in Pakistan. Several attacks have been carried out against them, mostly by TTP and BLA. While China and Pakistan have decided to "enhance counterterrorism cooperation", Pakistani authorities would be well advised to mobilise the support of local people by addressing their grievances and making them a partner in countering this menace.

In order to sustain China's economic engagement with Pakistan, a number of steps would need to be taken. First, Pakistan must find a way to stabilise its politics. A politically unstable country, with weak institutions, is unlikely to attract foreign, or even local, investment.

Second, there should be a long-term development plan with all major po--1-i-tical groups on bo--ard so that continuity of the plan can be ensured across governments.

Third, given that CPEC is now open to third countries, we may explore the possibility of multinational joint ventures that include Chinese businesses. As is often said, no candle loses its light while lighting other candles. In a recent roundtable at a Lahore university, one Chinese expert mentioned that Chinese companies would be ready to work with transnational investors for projects in Pakistan.

Fourth, Pakistan would need to expedite the SEZs, without which major investment is unlikely to trickle in. Fifth, Pakistan needs an early solution to the IPP conundrum. Our treasury is bleeding while heavy taxes are imposed on the people to make 'capacity payments' to IPP owners. Chinese investors, who had set up IPPs in Pakistan, are also complaining that their repatriation of $1.8bn is being held up.

Finally, all good ideas will remain on paper unless implemented in earnest. In this regard, government functionaries and regulators must recognise that facilitating foreign and local firms to do flourishing business in Pakistan is critical for our economic future. -- Courtesy Dawn cannot count the number of times I was made to give up my bedroom for a relative visiting wherever we were living as expats in the '70s to '90s. It was not a choice. In fact, I didn't even know I had a choice until I turned 21. It was pretty common for people to turn up unannounced aunties and uncles who helped raise us — and we were expected to be there, irrespective of homework, exams etc. We were scolded if we complained about unexpected guests.

Now, I can't remember the last time we had an unexpected visitor drop by. I myself have not dropped in on anyone without calling to check if they are available. I guess we're all just that busy now.

Technology has undoubtedly changed our lives and made the world smaller; we can talk to friends and family anywhere, anytime. You can attend birthdays, weddings, even funerals online. You can find everything you need online; you may even be safer online. But you are also cocooned in your own world online and the internet has made us more self-absorbed.

Yet paradoxically there's a loneliness epidemic all over the world. The UK was the first to announce a minister for loneliness in 2018, with the aim of reducing feelings of isolation, anxiety, and suicide ideation. Japan followed in 2021 as it sought to address the social isolation caused by Covid-19 which also saw the first uptick in suicide

As sad as that is, I'm more worried about younger folks who may not even know they are lonely because they believe their community is online. But as their elders, we know better: it is not the same as showing up for someone in their time of grief and happiness or just to shoot the breeze.

"The liminal spaces of our new world are massive — easy for us to be swallowed into — and disorienting," writes Athena Dixon in The Loneliness Files, part memoir, part critique on technology's impact on our lives.

In fact, isolation was mandated; quarantine was essential for one's survival. Some isolated with families while others were on their own — both faced issues: either wanting space or craving company.

Back in the day, artists and writers sought solitude and produced great works of art. Today, if you have a minute to yourself, you reach for your phone, as if being left alone with your thoughts is too awful a task to bear. Solitude is necessary for creation but look around you and their phones, bookmarking places we'll

France votes, with far right seeking power

Monitoring Desk PARIS: France voted on Sunday in a parliamentary run-off election with the far-right National Rally (RN) bidding for power but likely to fall short of a maa chaotic hung parliament. A hung parliament would severely dent President Emmanuel Macron's authority and herald a pro-longed period of instability and policy deadlock in the euro zone's second biggest economy. Should the nationalist, eurosceptic RN secure a majority, it would usher in France's first farright government since World War Two and send shockwaves through the European Union at a time populist parties are

Voting closes at 6 pm (1600 GMT) in towns and small cities and 8 pm in bigger cities. Pollsters will deliver initial projections based sample of voting stations at 8 p.m. Opinion polls forecast Marine Le Pen's RN will emerge the dominant force in the National Assembly as voters punish Macron over a cost of living crisis and being out of touch with the hardships people face.

However, the RN is seen failing to reach the 289seat target that would outright hand Le Pen's 28-yearold protégé Jordan Bardella the prime minister's job with a working majority. The far right's projected margin of victory has narrowed since Macron's centrist Together alliance and the leftwing New Popular Front (NPF) pulled scores of candidates from three-way races in the second round in a bid to unify the anti-RN vote. "France is on the cliff-edge and we don't know if we're going Around 108 million Americans will spend the remainder of the weekend under excessive heat advisories, with record-breaking temperatures forecast for many spots in California, southern Oregon and the Southwest, the National Weather Service said.

The West Coast will hover 15 to 30 degrees above average, reaching 110 Fahrenheit (43 Celsius) on Friday. "Expect only subtle

'Where did you go, monsoon? Hurry back, said, referring to a recent bout of torrential rain in the area, which is usually bonedry this time of year.

Some of the hottest spots will include Phoenix where it will be 115 F (46 C), Washington D.C. where it is expected to climb to 100 F (38 C), and Palm Springs, California, where it will reach 119 F (48 C). That is almost three times as hot as it will be in Yellowstone National Park in Montana, where the forecast was for temperatures to dip to 37 F on Friday tics and what he called "the dross of ideology" on Sunday, warning that democracy was not in good shape in many parts of the world. The 87-year-old pope was in the northeastern city of Trieste for a flying visit, his fourth trip within Italy in just over two months as he prepares for a 12-day journey across Asia in September, the longest of his рарасу. Speaking at an annual

Roman Catholic convention on social affairs, Francis said many people felt excluded from democracy, with the poor and the weak left to fend for themselves. "It is evident that democracy is not in good health in today's world,' he said, denouncing polarisation and partisanship.

"Ideologies are seduc-tive. Some people compare them to the Pied Piper of Hamelin. They seduce you, but they lead you to deny yourself," he said, referring to a fairy tale where a rat catcher uses his magic powers to steal away a town's children.

He said the "crisis of democracy" afflicted various nations, but did not give any specific examples. The pope was speaking on the day France holds a parliamentary run-off election, with the far-right National Rally (RN) expected to take the biggest share of the vote, a month after populist parties scored gains in European Union elections.

"Let us not be deceived by easy solutions. Let us instead be passionate about the common good," the pope said on Sunday, highlighting the damage caused by political "corruption and illegality" The pope, who himself rules as an absolute monarch in the tiny Vatican state, said it was important to teach children the importance of democratic values, warning that "indifference is a cancer of democracy"

"I am concerned about the small number of people who went to vote. Why is it happening?" he asked.

Pak upcoming IMF bailout will 'not be our last' if tax revenues don't rise: Aurangzeb

ISLAMABAD (INP): Pakistan will keep seeking financial assistance packages from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) if it does not significantly boost its tax revenues, Finance Minister Muhammad Aurangzeb said.

Aurangzeb's comments come days after Pakistan's president signed the federal budget for the current fiscal year, which has been criticized by the opposition, trade bodies and even the government's allies, for its ambitious tax
