CJP rejects PTI's objection to bench hearing Article 63-A review plea

ISLAMABAD (INP): Chief Justice Qazi Faez Isa on Wednesday rejected the PTI's objection to the formation of the bench hearing review petition of the Article 63-A case.

Earlier, the hearing turned sour when there was a bitter exchange between PTI's Syed Mustafin Kazmi and the chief justice.

As PTI's Barrister Ali Zafar came to the rostrum, his fellow counsel Kazmi followed him and objected to two judges — Justice Naem Afghan and Justice Mazhar Alam — on the re-constituted bench.

The chief justice expressed his anger and called police to oust Advocate Kazmi from the courtroom.

When the hearing resumed, Barrister Ali also objected to the formation of the CJP-led bench.

The bench took into account his objection during the proceedings and "unanimously" rejected the objection.

Barrister Ali submitted that he filed the review application late due to which it was not fixed for hearing. Chief Justice Isa asked him when the application was filed; you must have filed it in the morning?

Barrister Ali replied that he filed the application but the office of the Supreme Court did not approve it.

He said he needed time to present arguments. He has to consult PTI founder Imran Khan on the case.

He submitted that you [the CJP] said it is a constitutional matter. "Imran Khan is a former prime minister and is also a petitioner, he understands the constitution and he knows what to say. Consult him on the matter."

The chief justice asked him to start arguments, and Barrister Ali said that means "you are rejecting my request to meet Imran Khan."

Justice Naem Afghan said you could have met him yesterday, to which Ali said the PTI founder is in jail.

The chief justice said that if he had to consult the PTI founder, he would have told him yesterday and the court would have issued an order. In the past, the court had called the PTI founder on video link, and had arranged a meeting with the lawyers.

Nawaz asks Imran to learn humility, refrain from making tall claim

"As you sow, so shall you reap", PML-N president tells incarcerated PTI founder LAHORE (INP): Amid on-going protests by Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) in different areas of Punjab, Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) President Nawaz Sharif asked incarcerated party founder Imran Khan to learn humility and refrain from making tall claims.

"You reap what you sow," the three-time prime minister said to jailed PTI founder while addressing a ceremony related to "Apna Ghar Apni Chat" Scheme.

His statement came as PTI continues its anti-government campaign, with party workers and supporters staging protests in different areas of Punjab.

Without naming the PTI, the ruling party president said the ruling party of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa was not interested in the development of the province.

"They come Punjab with tear gas shells," the PML-N chief said hinting at PTI protesters.

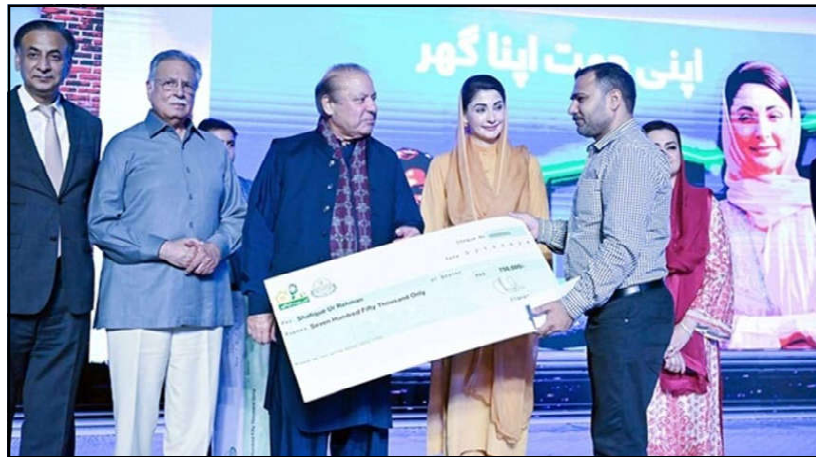

Nawaz also asked which of the "tall promises" the PTI had fulfilled. "Their performance is zero and they stage protest whenever they get a chance," he added.

"I think such elements should be dealt with strictly."

Moreover, the former premier also expressed disappointment with his supporters and voters, stating that they never raised their voice against his ouster from power in 2017.

"You never asked that so many good things are taking so why Nawaz Sharif is being removed [from power]," the PML-N chief said adding that proud and dignified nations always raise their voices against any injustice.

"Where is the Billion Tree [programme], where are the 350 dams [...] They [PTI] claimed to build 5 million houses. Still, they could not provide a single one," the PML-N president questioned as he accused the Imran Khan-founded party of promoting "violence, bloodshed and politics of protests" in the country.

In a media interview he said that the incumbent government will complete the privatisation of the national carrier along with three power distribution companies (Discos) before 2024 culminates.

The privatisation of PIA, initially set to conclude by October 1, has been postponed to October 31 due to low bidder interest, ongoing court cases, aging fleet issues, and civil aviation concerns.

Bilawal warns of confrontation if constitutional amendment not passed before Oct 25

"Matter will be resolved peacefully, if the amendment passed before October 25," says PPP chief

ISLAMABAD (INP): As the coalition government determined to pass a judiciary-centric constitutional package, Pakistan People's Party (PPP) Chairman Bilawal Bhutto-Zardari warned of potential confrontation if the proposed amendments did not pass before October 25 — the retirement date of the incumbent chief justice.

Last month, the coalition government made a futile attempt to pass a "closely-guarded" constitutional package amid speculation about a potential extension in the tenure of Chief Justice of Pakistan (CJP) Qazi Faez Isa.

However, the government failed to even table the amendments in parliament after JUI-F chief Maulana Fazlur Rehman refused to support the government's judicial package, leaving the contentious amendments hanging in the balance.

Ostensibly, the government was short of 13 votes in the National Assembly and nine in the Senate as the said legislation requires a two-thirds majority in both houses.

PTI failed to timely conduct intra-party elections: ECP

ISLAMABAD (INP): The Election Commission of Pakistan (ECP) has said that under Sections 208 and 209 of the Elections Act 2017, all political parties are required to hold intra-party elections within five years in accordance with their party constitution.

Initially, Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) was supposed to conduct its intra-party elections by June 13, 2021, but were not held on time, said a statement issued by ECP here Wednesday. The ECP served repeated reminders on PTI and before serving a show-cause notice on July 27, 2021, it further said. In response, PTI requested a one-year extension, citing COVID-19 pandemic. The ECP granted extension on the request of PTI, extending the deadline to June 13, 2022. However, PTI submitted incomplete intra-party election documents under Form 65 in June 2022 to the ECP and despite repeated reminders, the party continued to delay the submission of required documents.

Despite inordinate delay, the ECP has shown flexibility throughout the process and granted many opportunities to PTI to meet its constitutional requirements. "However, the responsibility for the slow progress rests with the PTI, as the ECP continues to work to legally resolve the matter," the statement further said.

Constitutional courts

The decision-makers in Rawalpindi and Islamabad should have taken the hint. Instead, their determination to have the controversial 'constitutional package' bulldozed through parliament with another attempt is now uniting the legal community in anger and indignation.

Over the weekend, some 300 lawyers from across the country — including some of the most notable names in the profession — signed on to an open letter addressed to the judges of the superior judiciary, urging them to refuse to take any part in a 'constitutional court' that is set up under this government's secretive legislative agenda.

Saying that they recognise the Supreme Court and the high courts as the only 'constitutional courts' of the country, the lawyers warned the judiciary against repeating past mistakes, regretting, in particular, that "Our higher judiciary has, for many decades now, lent legitimacy to a sustained assault on our Constitution and on our democracy".

Underlining their opposition to the proposal to set up a new 'constitutional court', these representatives of the legal community have made it clear that, in their eyes, such a court would be considered a PCO court, "and those who take the oath to serve on it will be PCO judges".

This is unusually strong phrasing by the lawyers' community. While they doubtless would have debated the merits and demerits of a constitutional court more congenially in a different context, right now, the brightest minds in the profession are seeing it as an existential challenge: a move that represents a continuation of the series of assaults launched by military dictators on Pakistan's constitutional order in the past.

There is no question that the timing of the move has tainted its intent — perhaps irrevocably. After all, the government has made it clear that it has little regard for the judiciary and its prerogatives. Perhaps the proposal would have been seen more charitably had the government demonstrated that it is as subservient to the law like everyone else. Instead, it chose to disregard, even sabotage, express orders of the Supreme Court on multiple occasions, with the latest being in the reserved seats case.

Given that it has established that it will not obey legal authority except when it is bent in its favour, how can it expect any court established by it to be seen as fair and impartial? It is even more troubling that the government wants to handpick the judge who will sit atop this proposed constitutional court. This will not only compromise the new court further but also potentially sully the reputation of whichever judge agrees to lead it. The lawyers have agreed that they will not engage with this idea because they do not see it as rooted in good faith. The judiciary, too, must soon make its position known.

Unseen horrors

Mahir Ali

When yet another Sudanese civil war erupted in April 2023, the then year-old Russian invasion of Ukraine continued to hog the attention of the so-called international community. Now, as Israel supplements its bombardment of Beirut with ground incursions into Lebanon almost a year after launching an open-ended genocidal assault on Gaza, the intensifying catastrophe in Sudan is still struggling to attract anything more than cursory concern and the usual platitudes.

WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus has a possible explanation. "I think race is in the play here. ... We see the pattern now," he told the BBC last month, after describing the "destruction, displacement, diseases everywhere, and now famine" that he witnessed during a visit to Sudan.

The violent tussle for power between rival military forces has claimed at least 20,000 lives, mostly among civilians; up to 12 million people have been displaced from their homes; there is mass starvation bordering on famine as the cultivation of food crops has dwindled and the conflict interferes with aid delivery. On top of everything, there are appalling indications of the 2003 genocide in Darfur being resumed by the same perpetrators: the Janjaweed militia, which evolved into the Rapid Support Forces (RSF) now competing for power with the Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF).

The RSF and the SAF jointly carried out the 2021 coup that crushed tentative hopes of a transition to some kind of democracy after a popular uprising in 2019 led to the end of Omar al-Bashir's 30-year dictatorship. The duumvirate formed by Mohamed Hamdan Dagalo, the RSF chief better known as Hemedti, and the SAF's General Abdel Fattah al-Burhan crumbled when the latter insisted on a relatively rapid integration of the RSF into the regular armed forces. Sudanese civilians have paid the price, as evidenced last week when the SAF embarked on a fresh effort to retake Khartoum.

Both sides have justifiably been accused of atrocities, although the RSF and its associates appear to be well ahead of the SAF in perpetrating sexual violence. Systematic rape as a weapon of war was a prominent part of the Janjaweed modus operandi, and it remains a favourite form of torture for the RSF, alongside arbitrary executions of young males, especially in its vicious campaign against non-Arab ethnic groups.

At the UN General Assembly last month, Burhan, invited as Sudan's de facto head of government despite the limits of his authority, appealed for international initiatives to stop the flow of weapons to the RSF in order to end the war (and, although he didn't say it out loud, consolidate his power). His remarks were widely interpreted as a salvo aimed primarily at the UAE, which, notwithstanding denials from Abu Dhabi, has been outed as the RSF's biggest arms supplier, its largest ranging from hi-tech Chinese drones to Serbian munitions.

A New York Times investigative report co-authored by Declan Walsh revealed last month how an Emirates Red Crescent hospital in Chad, near the Sudanese border, set up ostensibly to aid refugees from Sudan, mainly treats injured RSF combatants, and is situated next to drone hangars and a munitions storage facility.

The drones help to stave off threats to arms delivery convoys. Back in July, a Guardian report revealed that Emirati passports had been found in a part of Omdurman, across the Nile from Khartoum, after it was retaken by the SAF from the RSF, indicating that the UAE may be "covertly putting boots on the ground". The discovery was described by analysts as "a smoking gun" that called into question Abu Dhabi's denials about its alleged favouritism in the Sudanese conflict.

The UAE president stuck with his narrative during his meeting with Joe Biden last week, as the US president hailed his country as a "major defence partner" — an accolade hitherto reserved for India — and refused to call out the controversial role of a key Gulf ally that is a reliable customer for the US military industrial complex. The UAE leadership, seen as indebted to the RSF for its nation's misadventure in Yemen, may also be guided by Israel's penchant for disregarding the occasional verbal diatribes from Washington, as long as the military and intelligence supply chains it relies on remain intact. And they do.

Sudan is coveted for its vast gold reserves and extended Red Sea coastline, and the UAE is not the only pebble on the beach.

The Wagner Group was once allied with the RSF, but Russia now backs Burhan, reports suggest, alongside the likes of Egypt, Turkey, Saudi Arabia and even Ukraine — not to mention Iran, Russia and China, alongside the US and its European allies, are all part of the 21st-century scramble for Africa. But the UAE might possibly have trumped them all. -- Courtesy Dawn

New generation

Sohail Habib

At a recent parent-teacher meeting at an elite school, a parent complained of her son's poor performance in Urdu. The teacher told her not to worry, as all his classmates were facing problems in Urdu. This is the dilemma of our new generation, the Gen Z-ers, born between the mid-1990s and the late 2010s. In fact, Gen Z-ers are the first true digital natives, with technology seamlessly integrated into their lives, unlike previous generations, who are digital immigrants. Among their two billion worldwide, Pakistan is home to seven million — the fifth-largest Gen Z cohort after China, India, Indonesia and Nigeria.

American sociologist George Ritzer explains the dilemma of the new generation in 'The McDonaldisation of Society'. 'McDonaldisation' refers to the pervasive expansion of the principles of the fast-food chain: speed, convenience and standardisation for diverse societies and geographies. The ensuing cultural globalisation has the advantage of being democratic in nature, but the associated homogenisation threatens diversity.

Previous generations learnt through auditory delivery and manual practices; Gen Z-ers learn digitally and visually. Not surprisingly, many skills are becoming redundant such as calligraphy, classical music and the learning of oriental languages. Parenting styles are also changing. Previously, we saw helicopter parenting, with excessive parental involvement and control in children's lives. Today, Gen Z students are experiencing a 'CIA' style of parenting, where progress and grades are monitored through technology.

Cultural globalisation also features speed and efficiency, manifested in automated banking services, online shopping and self-checkout counters. However, the downside of excessive automation is dehumanisation which leads to poor tolerance in times of stress. Dubbed the 'loneliest generation', Gen Z-ers face anxiety owing to disruptive technologies, economic uncertainty and loss linked to the Covid pandemic. Moreover, previous generations would spend their free time socialising in person, which releases mood-elevating chemicals in the body. But this is missing in the emoji- and text-driven interactions of our youth on social media platforms today.

They frequently suffer from FOMO, 'the fear of missing out', and so cannot stay away from their phones for too long. Gen Z-ers are relatively more pragmatic than their predecessors. They focus more on skills than on theory and prefer certification over degrees. Although they exhibit more entrepreneurial qualities compared to previous generations, they are more conservative and prudent when it comes to finances. This shift is mainly shaped by the perma-crisis of the 2008 Great Recession, Covid-19 and 9/11 hyper-terrorism.

The new generation prefers personalised experiences, self-enrichment and an adventurous lifestyle. This has spurred local tourism from Kalash to Kumrat and Instaselfies from Deosai to Phander. However, this hyper-mobility has two associated trends. Firstly, there is a hyper-exodus of youngsters from Pakistan. According to the UN World Population 2024 report, 1.6m Pakistanis left the country in 2023. This exodus is more than the numbers from the two most populous countries: India (980,000) and China (570,000). This may be considered 'brain drain' but also proves to be a primary source of remittances in the long term.

The second trend is the declining attachment to ancestral lands. An example is the third generation of Kashmiris who have settled in the UK. Older generations of the Kashmiri diaspora would invest back in Kashmir and bring the bodies of relatives for burial there. However, the new generation of Kashmiri expats has diminished emotional and financial interest in their ancestral land. A similar trend can be observed in rural-urban migration.

The grooming and blooming of Gen Z-ers in the virtual world has made it a generation of 'scroll & troll'. Like the gig economy's short TikTok reels, McJobs, micro-celebrities and freelancing, our youth display a short attention span and an appetite for instant gratification. This makes it harder to focus on deep learning or long-term projects. Casual relationships — 'situationships' — are developed online and terminated by ghosting.

The age of marriage is moving to the late 20s.

During Juma prayers, worshippers arrive late and leave quickly after the prayers. The reliance of Gen Z-ers on social media has made them more vulnerable to fake news and synthetic content. According to the Global Risks Report 2024, the top five risks that Pakistan faces today include fake news and misinformation.

In short, technology has transformed the 'global village' into the 'global street', but Gen Z-ers' excessive usage of gadgetry may lead to a 'tech neck'. -- Courtesy Dawn issued to five applicants who will shortly start pilot operations in the country. The Governor shared that as a result of SBP's efforts, today in Pakistan, we have around 59 million branchless banking wallets, 19 million mobile banking apps, another 3.7 million e-money wallets, and 12 million internet banking users.

UN Security Council calls emergency meeting amid aggravation in Middle East Monitoring Desk GENEVA: A day after Iran struck back against Israel after launching a slew of missile attacks in Tel Aviv following killing of top leadership of Hezbollah by the Zionist state, the United Nations Security Council called an emergency meeting on Wednesday to discuss ways to avoid escalation in the Middle East. Recent episodes of bloody confrontation between warring parties of the Middle East brought the matters on edge, culminating into a full-blown conflict in the powder keg region of West Asia. United Nations Secretary General António Guterres once again called for an immediate ceasefire while British Prime Minister Kier Starmer condemned Iran's attack on Israel by reaffirming Britain's unwavering support for Israel's defence. The British PM urged Iranian leadership to abandon support for proxies aiming to target the Zionist state. Earlier, United States of America President Joe Biden also vowed to stand by Israel come what may. Iran fired a salvo of ballistic missiles at Israel in retaliation to the latter's campaign against Tehran's Hezbollah allies in Lebanon and the killing of its chief and that of Hamas. Alarms sounded across Israel and explosions could be heard in Jerusalem and the Jordan River valley after Israelis piled into bomb shelters. Reporters on state television lay flat on the ground during live broadcasts. Reuters journalists saw missiles intercepted in the airspace of neighbouring Jordan. Israeli media reports said as many as 100 missiles had been launched.

After about an hour, the military announced there was no longer a threat and "it was decided that it is now permitted to leave protected spaces in all areas across the country", with a "large number" of Iranian missiles intercepted. Reports said between 150 and 200 missiles had been fired in the attack. It was Iran's second on Israel after a missile and drone attack in April in response to a deadly Israeli air strike on the Iranian consulate in Damascus. Israel vowed to retaliate with an army spokesman saying it would respond at the time and place of its choosing. "This attack will have consequences. We have plans, and we will operate at the place and time we decide," said Israeli military spokesman Rear Admiral Daniel Hagari.

Palestinian officials say 51 killed in Israeli strikes on southern Gaza

Monitoring Desk DEIR AL-BALAH: Israeli strikes killed at least 51 people in southern Gaza overnight, including women and children, as the military launched ground operations in the hard-hit city of Khan Younis, Palestinian medical officials said Wednesday. Israel has continued to strike what it says are militant targets across Gaza nearly a year after Hamas' Oct. 7 attack ignited the war there, and even as attention has shifted to Lebanon and Iran. Israel has launched ground operations against Hezbollah in Lebanon, and Tehran fired ballistic missiles on Israel late Tuesday. Separately, Hezbollah said its fighters clashed with Israeli troops in the Lebanese border town of Oadaiissh, forcing them to retreat. There was no immediate comment from the Israeli military or independent confirmation of the fighting, which would mark the first ground combat since Israeli troops crossed the border this week.

Unexploded US bomb causes minor blast at Japan airport

Monitoring Desk KYUSHU: An unexploded US bomb caused a minor blast at a regional Japanese airport, officials said on Wednesday, with reports saying that the device likely dated from World War II. The airport in southern Japan originated in 1943 as an Imperial Japanese Navy base, sending dozens of "kamikaze" aircraft on suicide missions. There were no reports of injuries but dozens of flights were cancelled. The airport confirmed part of a taxiway had caved in. "After investigation with the Self-Defense Forces, we concluded that it is an explosion of a US unexploded bomb," a transport ministry official told AFP. The official added that it was not known whether the bomb was dropped during World War II, though local media reported it likely was.

Iran's president visits Qatar, aims to rally opposition to Israeli crimes

Monitoring Desk DUBAI: Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian arrived in Qatar on Wednesday for bilateral talks and a summit at which he said he hopes to enlist Asian countries' help in preventing what he called "Israeli crimes" in the Middle East. Starting his first trip to Qatar as president, Pezeshkian criticised Israel over the killing of Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh. Iran blames Israel for Haniyeh's assassination on July 31. Israel has neither claimed nor denied responsibility for his death. Since then, Israel has assassinated the leader of the Iran-backed Hezbollah group in Lebanon, Hassan Nasrallah, and sent troops into southern Lebanon on what it called a limited operation. Iran responded by firing a barrage of missiles at Israel on Tuesday. "We also want security and peace. It was Israel that assassinated Haniyeh in Tehran," Pezeshkian was quoted saying on his arrival in Qatar by Iran's Student News Network. "Europeans and the US said if we do not act, there will be a peace in Gaza in one week. We waited for them to have peace but they increased their killing". Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, whose country faces conflicts against both Hamas in Gaza and Hezbollah in Lebanon.

Myanmar civil war fuels surge in cross-border drug trade, Thailand official says

Monitoring Desk BANGKOK: Thailand has seen a surge in illegal drugs trafficked from neighbouring Myanmar and a sharp increase in methamphetamine and heroin seizures, as a civil war adds fuel to the regional drug trade, a senior Thai counter-narcotics official said. Apikit Ch.Rojprasert, deputy secretary-general of Office of the Narcotics Control Board (ONCB), said the northern region remains the main trafficking route into Thailand, with dealers going through the mountains or on the Mekong river to bring in methamphetamine tablets and crystal meth, also known as ice. Thai authorities say organised crime networks have allied with militias and rebel groups to set up "super labs" in Myanmar's Shan and Kachin States. A junta spokesperson declined to comment for this story but Myanmar's ruling junta has previously said it is committed to working with neighbouring countries to tackle narcotics. "Because of the armed conflict, the drug trade is one of the factors used to fund weapon purchases or drive the fighting forces," Apikit told Reuters in an interview. "We have to be vigilant about crimes that are linked to drug trafficking and work with neighbouring countries." Myanmar is locked in a civil war, with the military fighting on multiple fronts and losing territory to an armed resistance movement loosely allied with several ethnic minority rebel groups. The military took over the Myanmar government in 2021. Seizure of meth tablets in the first eight and a half months of this year in Thailand's northern provinces of Chiang Mai, Chiang Rai and Mae Hong Son increased by 172% from the amount seized in all of 2023 to 346 million pills, ONCB data showed. Seizure of crystal meth in those provinces increased by 39% over the same period to 6.48 tons, the data showed.

Iran's Khamenei warned Nasrallah of Israeli plot to kill him, sources say

Monitoring Desk DUBAI: Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei warned Hezbollah leader Syed Hassan Nasrallah to flee Lebanon days before he was killed in an Israeli strike and is now deeply worried about Israeli infiltration of senior government ranks in Tehran, three Iranian sources said. In the immediate aftermath of the attack on Hezbollah's booby-trapped pagers on Sept 17, Khamenei sent a message with an envoy to beseech the Hezbollah secretary general to leave for Iran, citing intelligence reports that suggested Israel had operatives within Hezbollah and was planning to kill him, one of the sources, a senior Iranian official, told Reuters. The messenger, the official said, was a senior Iranian Revolutionary Guards commander, Brigadier General Abbas Nilforoushan, who was with Nasrallah in his bunker when it was hit by Israeli bombs and was also killed. Khamenei, who has remained in a secure location inside Iran since Saturday, personally ordered a barrage of around 200 missiles to be fired at Israel on Tuesday, a senior Iranian official said. The attack was retaliation for the deaths of Nasrallah and Nilforoushan, the Revolutionary Guards said in a statement. The statement also cited the July killing of Hamas Leader Ismail Haniyeh in Tehran, and Israel's attacks on Lebanon. Israel has not claimed responsibility for Haniyeh's death.

President directs CAA to appoint deceased employee's son

ISLAMABAD (APP): President Asif Ali Zardari has directed the Pakistan Civil Aviation Authority (PCAA) to process the appointment of a deceased employee's son in accordance with the law within a month. As per details, Faheem Ahmed (the complainant) had complained against the PCAA for his non-appointment against the deceased employees' quota, according to a President House press release.

The complainant stated that his father was an employee of PCAA, who had died in the year 1999 during service due to cancer. He said as he was a minor at the time, he could not apply for appointment against the deceased employees' quota. He said that when he applied for a job, his request was turned down without any justification. He approached PCAA for the redressal of his grievance but to no avail. Feeling aggrieved, he approached the Wafaqi Mohtasib for the resolution of his complaint.

The Mohtasib decided that the complainant had failed to make out any case of maladministration against PCAA as the Family Assistance Package was not applicable at the time of his application.

The complainant then filed a representation with the president against the orders of the Mohtasib. In his decision, the president observed that the complainant's father expired in 1999 during service and at that time the petitioner was only six years of age. He noted that the petitioner applied for appointment, after coming of age, under the policy of 2005, according to which the son of a deceased employee was to be considered for appointment in the same department without undergoing the formality of advertisement.
