Mohsin Naqvi rules out talks with PTI founder

Govt to secure Red Zone during visit of Belarus' President; Interior ministry orders KP bureaucracy to ensure state resources not used; Section 144 in Rawalpindi till Nov 26

ISLAMABAD (APP): Federal Interior Minister Mohsin Naqvi has ruled out negotiations with the founder of Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI), stating that dialogue cannot take place under threats.

Talking to the media after appearing in the Islamabad High Court on Thursday, Naqvi emphasized the government's focus on ensuring the safety of the city and upcoming state events, as a high-level Belarusian delegation, including their president, is set to visit Pakistan next week.

Naqvi revealed that stringent security measures, such as placing containers and potentially suspending mobile services, would be implemented to protect the visiting delegation and maintain order. "The safety of state guests is our top priority, followed by the security of Islamabad's residents. Protests during such crucial times cannot be allowed," he asserted.

Addressing the PTI's recent protests, Naqvi criticized their timing, which he claimed often coincides with significant national events. He urged the public to evaluate the motives behind these actions. "Protests are not prohibited, but they must be confined to their own districts and provinces. Marching on Islamabad will not be permitted."

Responding to questions about potential negotiations with PTI, Naqvi clarified that no talks were underway with the PTI founder.

"I support dialogue, but it cannot happen under threats or conditions that disrupt law and order," he added. He also dismissed the notion of PTI setting deadlines for negotiations, urging them to seek resolutions through legal avenues like the courts.

Big blow to PTI IHC bars protests, urges interior minister to engage PTI for peaceful dialogue

Monitoring Desk

ISLAMABAD: In light of recent legislative developments surrounding public protests, the Islamabad High Court (IHC) has issued a directive prohibiting demonstrations, rallies, and sit-ins that violate the new law on public gatherings.

However, the court has instructed Interior Minister Mohsin Naqvi to initiate peaceful negotiations with Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) to ensure that future protests are conducted within constitutional limits.

Chief Justice Aamer Farooq issued a five-page written order in response to PTI's petition challenging the restrictions on public protests on Thursday. The IHC directed the Interior Secretary to form a committee, either under the leadership of the Interior Minister or a suitable official, to facilitate dialogue with PTI's leadership.

The committee will also brief PTI leaders on the security sensitivities linked to the Belarusian President's upcoming visit, stressing the need for peaceful proceedings.

The Chief Commissioner of Islamabad was also directed to join the committee, as the court expressed confidence that this outreach would likely foster some progress.

RAWALPINDI (APP): General Sahir Shamshad Mirza, NI (M), Chairman Joint Chiefs of Staff Committee (CJCS) on Thursday visited the 12th International Defence Exhibition and Seminar (IDEAS-24) and held wide-ranging talks on the sidelines.

The CJCS held separate meetings with numerous officials including Defence Ministers, Commanders of Armed Forces and other important officials from different countries, including Türkiye, Azerbaijan, South Africa, Argentina, Malaysia, UAE, Cambodia, Kingdom of Eswatini, Gambia, Brunei, Maldives and Malawi, said a news release issued by Inter Services Public Relations (ISPR).

During the aforementioned meetings, key aspects of the defense and security relationship were discussed. All parties reflected on various areas of bilateral security and cooperation, especially in defense production.

The dignitaries expressed a strong interest in deepening their engagement with Pakistan's defense sector.

The CJCS also gave a keynote speech at a seminar, titled "Pakistan's Defence Production and Potential: Challenges and Way forward".

The Chairman JCSC emphasized that Pakistan's defence industry is the force behind equipping the battle-hardened Armed Forces of Pakistan.

He further said that through superior R&D and using innovative and cost-effective solutions, Pakistan's defence industries are not only fulfilling country's essential defence requirements but also exploring avenues of collaboration in the international defence market. No release, no reprieve; Imran Khan unyielding on Nov. 24 protest plans RAWALPINDI (INP): Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) Imran Khan has reiterated that his party's planned protest in Islamabad on November 24 will proceed, asserting that no assurances have been given for his release.

In a statement from Adiala Jail, Khan said that an offer was made through party leaders Ali Amin Gandapur and Barrister Gohar to suspend the protest, but his demands for the release of detained party members were not met.

Imran emphasised that the government's decision not to free him, despite Islamabad High Court (IHC) approving his bail, demonstrates a lack of sincerity in negotiations.

He accused authorities of attempting to extend his incarceration and thwart the protest.

"We are left with no choice but to protest like a living nation," Imran remarked, adding that the November 24 rally will see participation from Pakistanis abroad who enjoy freedom in other countries.

He asserted that negotiations would continue, though he expressed doubts about the government's seriousness.

Military option

Considering that Balochistan has been experiencing a steady wave of terrorist violence over the past few months, particularly involving Baloch separatist groups, it is no surprise that the state has decided to use armed force to quell the insurgency.

Using the platform of the Apex Committee, the civil and military leadership said on Tuesday that an operation would be launched to counter terrorism and separatist violence in the province, while Nacta would be revitalised under the vision of Azm-i-Istehkam.

It is clear why the state has to take firm action to restore peace in Balochistan. In August, terrorists launched a coordinated series of attacks in different parts of the province, such incidents have been occurring since then with disturbing regularity.

Apart from these incidents, there have been numerous grisly murders of non-Baloch workers, as well as the suicide bombing in October outside Karachi airport in which two Chinese nationals were killed.

Yet it should be remembered that although Balochistan has witnessed numerous military operations over the decades, they have largely failed to bring long-lasting peace to the province.

As this paper has said before, while restoring peace is essential, addressing Balochistan's socioeconomic deprivation is equally important as terrorists exploit poverty and underdevelopment in the resource-rich province to turn people against the state.

Better ties with Kabul can help thwart the malignant designs of the "hostile foreign powers" that the Apex Committee identified.

Could this space be better used than to pen a requiem to a fellow writer and columnist? Khaled Ahmed passed away last Sunday, in Lahore, just as the suffocating smog lifted, making life for those who have survived him livable.

Inevitably, any memoir of a friend must begin with one's first encounter. I met Khaled in the winter of 1966. I had returned from London after qualifying as a chartered accountant.

Nawab Kalabagh (then governor West Pakistan) had banned plays being performed by men with women. Mixed students in Government College could not act together but the GC stage was available to host amateur actors.

Shamim Ahmed (later Mrs Zafar Hilaly) played the lead role of Nina. Agha Ghazanfar (later Khaled's colleague in the Civil Service) played her love sick swain Konstantin.

The challenge came in finding a dead seagull in upcountry Lahore. I fabricated a facsimile in cloth. It should have worked, except that when Konstantin tossed the bird at Nina's feet, it bounced, and bounced, and bounced.

After graduating but before joining our Foreign Service, Khaled worked with Sohail Iftikhar (son of the Congress politician Mian Iftikharuddin). Sohail had established Nigarishat, with the aim of publishing Urdu translations of historical classics.

Khaled often recalled Nigarishat's teething problems, of Sohail's oversize desk that got wedged on the staircase, forcing every visitor to clamber up or slide down.

Khaled's facility with languages enabled him to master Russian. He served in Moscow under ambassador Jamsheed Marker. Khaled recalled Marker and himself being summoned to the Kremlin in the early hours one wintry morning.

Khaled's only son lives abroad. Khaled's lineal descendants though are his writings. His genealogy is traceable in his kinship with words.

In time, Khaled left diplomacy to its own devices. He rejoined an earlier love — philology. He consorted with a harem of words. He chose to live in his own world, one in which suits and ties and personal ambition had no place.

fore and after Mr Z.A. Bhutto and Gen Ziaul Haq had made it mandatory.

He helped an upwardly mobile Pathan entrepreneur Rehmat Shah Afridi establish an English newspaper The Frontier Post, here in Lahore. Despite Khaled's editorial skills, the newspaper lost money by the bagful.

During his long career, Khaled jumped from one journalistic ice-floe to another — writing for whichever paper or journal could sustain his intellectual weight.

On a personal level, Khaled mentored my wife Shahnaz during her early days as a writer. He became a kind and perceptive reviewer of my books as and when they came out.

Khaled's only son lives abroad. Khaled's lineal descendants though are his writings. His genealogy is traceable in his kinship with words. Khaled Ahmed has gone. He has left behind 20 books and a plethora of informed, often provocative, always thoughtful opinions.

Resource dilemma

Pakistan has turned to two US law firms to fend off Tehran's penalty claim over the delayed gas pipeline project with Iran. Does this sound familiar? It should if we recall Reko Diq. Just recently, Pakistan settled a lawsuit with Barrick Gold over the Reko Diq mining project.

Pakistan's most profound lesson from history may be this: it seldom truly learns from it. The same mistakes are replayed like a broken record. The past seems to hold wisdom, but for some reason, we don't heed it, and then arrive at a point when the world's courts have to chase us down.

Pipelines have become synonymous with anti-climate pursuits, often cutting through indigenous lands and infringing on land rights. But the Pakistan-Iran gas pipeline isn't just about energy; it's a display of global power dynamics.

In 2009, Islamabad inked a deal with Tehran to import up to a billion cubic feet of gas daily via a cross-border pipeline. As the global balance shifts from West to East — despite the election of Donald Trump as the next US president — the rules of the power game are bound to change.

inaction. This legal manoeuvring underscores a decade of missed opportunities and geopolitical hesitations. As energy shortages persist, one wonders when Pakistan will move beyond excuses and pipelines on paper.

The US threat of sanctions over this pipeline project with Iran is a reminder of Western influence dictating local energy choices. Pakistan faces a massive gas supply-demand gap that is only growing wider.

The winds of change are blowing, and America is set to have a different administration; however, its Iran policy may remain unchanged or even take a harsher turn compared to the one under the Biden administration.

As the global balance shifts from West to East — despite the election of Donald Trump as the next US president — the rules of the power game are bound to change.

Looking forward, Pakistan needs a strategic, long-term approach to energy and resource management. This means establishing policies that leverage our natural resources sustainably while remaining adaptable to geopolitical shifts.

sources. For a country of our size, meeting energy demands requires solid, well-thought-out plans. Major decisions must account for global consequences. Poor management will leave us vulnerable to court battles.

With Trump's reelection, Pakistan faces even greater urgency in addressing the pipeline issue. We must anticipate a hard-line stance from the new Trump administration, which is likely to increase the pressure on Pakistan to abandon projects that involve Iran.

Pakistan should explore alternative financing and partnerships for its energy projects, ones that align with global dynamics yet meet our critical energy needs. By resolving this quickly, we can protect our economy from punitive measures and redirect funds to essential sectors rather than legal battles.

ICC issues arrest warrants for Israel's PM Netanyahu, Gallant

Monitoring Desk
THE HAGUE: The International Criminal Court (ICC) on Thursday issued arrest warrants for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and former defence Minister Yoav Gallant, as well as Hamas's military chief Mohammed Deif.

"The Chamber issued warrants of arrest for two individuals, Benjamin Netanyahu and Yoav Gallant, for crimes against humanity and war crimes committed from at least October 8, 2023, until at least May 20, 2024, the day the prosecution filed the applications for warrants of arrest," the Hague-based ICC said in a statement. A warrant had also been issued for Deif, it added in a separate statement.

The arrest warrants had been classified as "secret", to protect witnesses and to safeguard the conduct of the investigations, the court said.

"However, the Chamber decided to release the information below since conduct similar to that addressed in the warrant of arrest appears to be ongoing," the tribunal said.

"Moreover, the Chamber considers it to be in the interest of victims and their families that they are made aware of the warrants' existence."

ICC chief prosecutor Karim Khan in May requested the court issue arrest warrants for Netanyahu and Gallant over alleged war crimes and crimes against humanity in Gaza.

Netanyahu sacked Gallant as defence minister on November 5.

Khan also sought warrants against top Hamas leaders, including Deif, on suspicion of war crimes and crimes against humanity.

The prosecutor dropped the application for former Hamas chief Ismail Haniyeh on August 2 "because of the changed circumstances caused by Mr Haniyeh's death" in Tehran on July 31, the ICC earlier said in a statement. According to Israel, Deif was killed by a strike on July 13 in southern Gaza, though Hamas denies he is dead.

Hezbollah says Israel 'cannot impose conditions' for truce

Monitoring Desk
BEIRUT: Hezbollah's leader delivered a defiant speech on Wednesday (Nov 20) saying Israel cannot impose its conditions for a truce, as US envoy Amos Hochstein headed from Lebanon to Israel to try to end the war.

Israeli Foreign Minister Gideon Saar, in a near-simultaneous statement, said any ceasefire deal must ensure Israel has the "freedom to act" against Hezbollah.

Hochstein announced in Lebanon that he would head to Israel on Wednesday to try to seal a ceasefire agreement in the war in Lebanon, which escalated in late September after nearly a year of deadly exchanges of fire across Israel's northern border.

Israel expanded the focus of its operations from Gaza to Lebanon, vowing to secure the north and allow tens of thousands of people displaced by the cross-border fire to return home.

It has also intensified strikes on neighbouring Syria, a key conduit of weapons for Hezbollah from its backer Iran.

Russia, North Korea agree to boost charter flights after trade meeting

Monitoring Desk
SEOUL: North Korea and Russia have signed a protocol on cooperation after meetings covering trade, the economy, science and technology in Pyongyang, North Korean state media KCNA said on Thursday.

There were few details in the KCNA report, but Russia's TASS news agency said on Tuesday that the countries agreed to increase charter flights following the meeting, citing Russia's ministry of natural resources.

Between January and September, the number of tourists travelling between Russia and North Korea amounted to over 5,000 people, with more than 70% travelling by air, it said. The increased charter flights are expected to take off not only from Russia's eastern region close to North Korea, but also from major Russian cities in other areas, TASS said, citing the ministry. KCNA said on Thursday that the Russian delegation led by natural resources minister Alexander Kozlov, which met North Korean leader Kim Jong Un on Monday, had now departed from Pyongyang. During the delegation's visit, zoo animals were transferred to North Korea as gifts from Russian President Vladimir Putin.

No hostages-for-prisoners swap deal with Israel unless Gaza war ends: Hamas

Monitoring Desk
CAIRO: Hamas' acting Gaza chief Khalil al-Hayya said in remarks broadcast on Wednesday that there would be no hostages-for-prisoners swap deal with Israel unless the war in the Palestinian enclave ended.

"Without an end to the war, there can be no prisoner swap," Hayya said in a televised interview with the group's Al-Aqsa television channel, reiterating the group's position on how to bring the war to an end.

"If the aggression is not ended, why would the resistance and in particular Hamas, return the prisoners (hostages)?" he said. "How would a sane or an insane person lose a strong card he owns while the war is continuing?"

Efforts to negotiate a truce for Gaza have stalled, and the US on Wednesday vetoed a UN Security Council resolution calling for an unconditional permanent ceasefire. Washington's UN ambassador said the US would only support a resolution that explicitly calls for the immediate release of the Israeli hostages as part of a ceasefire.

Hayya, who led the group's negotiating team in talks with Qatari and Egyptian mediators, blamed the lack of progress on Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who in turn holds the Islamist group responsible for the stalled talks.

US again vetoes UNSC attempt for Gaza truce

Monitoring Desk
UNITED NATIONS: The United States on Wednesday vetoed a UN Security Council resolution for a ceasefire in Gaza, drawing criticism of the Biden administration for once again blocking international action aimed at halting the 13-month conflict.

The 15-member council voted on a resolution put forward by 10 non-permanent members that called for an "immediate, unconditional and permanent ceasefire" and separately demanded the release of Israeli prisoners.

Only the US voted against, using its veto as a permanent member to block the resolution.

Robert Wood, deputy US ambassador to the UN, said Washington had made clear it would only support a resolution that explicitly calls for the immediate release of prisoners as part of a ceasefire.

Robert Wood said the US had sought compromise, but the text of the proposed resolution would have sent a "dangerous message" to Hamas that "there's no need to come back to the negotiating table".

Israel has killed nearly 44,000 people in Gaza. Members roundly criticised Washington for blocking the resolution put forward by the Security Council's 10 elected members: Algeria, Ecuador, Guyana, Japan, Malta, Mozambique, South Korea, Sierra Leone, Slovenia and Switzerland.

"It is deeply regretted that due to the use of the veto, this council has once again failed to uphold its responsibility to maintain international peace and security," Malta's UN Ambassador Vanessa Frazier said after the vote failed, adding that the text of the resolution "was by no means a maximalist one".

"It represented the bare minimum of what is needed to begin to address the desperate situation on the ground," she said.

UN nuclear chief welcomes Iran's 'concrete step' on uranium stockpile

Monitoring Desk
VIENNA: UN atomic watchdog chief Rafael Grossi on Wednesday welcomed Iran's "concrete step" on agreeing to cap its stockpile of highly enriched uranium after Tehran implemented preparatory steps to stop adding to its inventory. "I think this is ... a concrete step in the right direction—we have a fact which has been verified by us," Grossi told reporters in Vienna. "I attach importance to the fact that for the first time... since the distancing of Iran from its past obligations, they are taking a different direction," he said. But he said he could "not exclude" that Iran's commitment might falter "as a result of further developments". The comments by Grossi came after Western powers submitted a resolution censuring Iran for its poor cooperation with the International Atomic Energy

Multilateral gatherings of national security officials in Asia have been used in the past for meetings between US and Chinese defense leaders, but China declined a meeting request by Austin during this week's Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN)-Plus defense ministers meeting.

"I don't think that it has any sort of implications for the future."
