Bilawal accuses PML-N of not upholding political agreements

PPP chairman upset over government's failure to adhere to agreements, particularly during constitutional reforms; says I withdrew my name from JCP in protest as govt did not fulfil promise

KARACHI (Agencies): Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) Chairman Bilawal Bhutto Zardari has expressed frustration with the Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N), accusing the party of violating agreements and failing to provide PPP with respect in the federal government. Addressing the media at Bilawal House in Karachi on Thursday, Bilawal stated that the issue was not about personal grievances but about honour and political integrity. China security ties

After a slightly turbulent patch, during which officials publicly used uncharacteristically direct language, Pakistan-China ties appear to have returned to cordiality. While speaking to the media on Monday, the Chinese foreign ministry's spokesperson reiterated Beijing's desire to strengthen bilateral ties with Pakistan. He said China would help Pakistan in its fight against terrorism, while resolving to "foil any attempt" to destabilise ties. The relationship has mainly been tested by the targeting of Chinese personnel in Pakistan by terrorists. Two major deadly attacks have occurred this year — last month in Karachi and in March in KP.

While reacting to unguarded comments by the foreign minister at an Islamabad seminar in October, the Chinese ambassador reiterated the need for Pakistan to take steps to safeguard the lives of his compatriots working in this country. Matters were further complicated after the Foreign Office termed the ambassador's remarks "perplexing". However, the latest comments from Beijing indicate that this incident may be behind us. Yet the fact remains that Beijing remains concerned about the security of its nationals in Pakistan, and if this matter is not addressed satisfactorily, it may affect bilateral ties. Some media reports have stated that China wants a joint security mechanism with Pakistan. These reports say the Chinese proposal involves the deployment of their own security personnel in this country. Pakistani officials are reportedly not comfortable with this suggestion, and no one in Islamabad or Rawalpindi has publicly commented on these plans.

While training of local forces and intelligence-sharing can be considered, putting Chinese boots on the ground in Pakistan is not a good idea. In fact, having any foreign armed force present in the country should be discouraged. Security should solely be the prerogative of Pakistan's military and civil armed forces. The Chinese concerns cannot be dismissed, as the relationship with Beijing, particularly in view of CPEC, is a key pillar of our foreign and economic policy. It is also a fact that lapses on Pakistan's part have allowed terrorists to target Chinese nationals. Yet instead of allowing foreign forces to operate on Pakistani soil to protect their nationals, closer CT cooperation with Beijing should be pursued. A dedicated division to protect CPEC schemes — manned by thousands of personnel — already exists. Capacity-building of this division, such as the provision of modern equipment and improvement in intelligence-gathering capabilities, should be the state's priority to ensure the security of Chinese nationals and projects. If Pakistan is serious about attracting foreign investment, the state must improve the security situation so that investors feel safe in bringing their citizens here. Moreover, foreign projects should prioritise the hiring and training of locals in their areas of operation to bring jobs and prosperity to underdeveloped and economically deprived regions.

How could 74.5 million Republican voters in the US have got it right, and the rest of the world got it wrong?

Nothing in recent history can match Donald Trump's dramatic re-entry into the White House. Adolf Hitler's success in the federal German elections of 1933 offers a pale parallel. Hitler's impact though was local, European, until it exploded across the globe. Trump's effect is ab initio international, with domestic undertones such as immigration and jobs.

Hitler never disguised his intentions. They were apparent in his incendiary manifesto Mein Kampf, published in 1925-26. (It sold 5.2m copies.) Hitler had written: "All great cultures of the past perished only because the original creative race died out from blood poisoning." He declared that it was "the sacred mission of the German people... to assemble and preserve the most valuable racial elements... and raise them to the dominant position."

Trump, too, has made no secret of his abrasive nationalism. America First. America uber alles. Trump claims that he has never read Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf. His first wife Ivana reportedly told her attorney that "Trump kept a book of Hitler's speeches in a bedside cabinet."

Trump may not have owned or read Mein Kampf. He has — as if by osmosis — absorbed its vitriolic xenophobia. In December 2023, at a campaign rally in Iowa, he asserted that "illegal immigrants inside the US are poisoning and destroying the blood of America". (Iowa voted loyally for Trump in 2016, 2020, and in 2024.)

Hitler, once in power, consolidated his authority by legislating the Enabling Act, which gave him dictatorial powers. Trump has secured the White House, a majority in the Senate, and expects a majority in the House of Representatives. If he appoints two more judges to the US Supreme Court (he put three in during his first term), he will have a majority of five to four there as well. Such unbridled power should come with self-restraint.

Almost a century ago, in 1937, Jawaharlal Nehru (elected president of the Indian National Congress for a third time) wrote an anonymous essay warning himself against the dangers of cultism.

Published under the pseudonym Chana-kya, Nehru cautioned his public persona: "Men like Jawaharlal, with all their capacity for great and good work, are unsafe in democracy. He calls himself a democrat and a socialist, and no doubt he does so in all earnestness, but every psychologist knows that the mind is ultimately a slave to the heart, and logic can always be made to fit in with the desires and irremissible urges of a person."

He continued: "A little twist and Jawa-harlal might turn a dictator sweeping aside the paraphernalia of a slow-moving democracy. He might still use the language and slogans of democracy and socialism, but we all know how fascism has fattened on this language and then cast it away as useless lumber."

Such brave self-analysis was cremated with Nehru. Modern elected autocrats, once in power, regard voters as "useless lumber", firewood to be used only to stoke the next election.

Leaders most beholden to the United States — Great Britain's Keir Starmer, Israel's Benjamin Netanyahu and Ukraine's Volodymyr Zelensky — were quick off the block to congratulate president-elect Trump. Our message of congratulations was not amongst Trump's top 20.

We need to admit that our relationship with the United States has slipped down many notches. That happened when the US re-hyphenated us, replacing Indo-Pak with Af-Pak. With Afghanistan off the US radar, we have little relevance on our own.

There was a time when the Shah's Iran was used as the conduit for America's policies in the region. Today, that role has been subcon-ra-cted to Saudi Ara-b-ia. Only a fly on the wall will know what was discussed between our COAS (whose tenure has been extended by three years) and Saudi Crown Prince Mohamed bin Salman, meeting so soon after Trump's re-election.

Outsiders see Pakistan as a multi-headed gorgon, with many power centres. As Dr Henry Kissinger once famously asked: "Who do I call if I want to call Europe?" Who does PM Narendra Modi call if he wants to parley with Pakistan over Jammu & Kashmir, or the Indus Waters Treaty, or to discuss cross-border pollution? The Sharifs, and if so, which? The establishment, and if so, with whom and how?

We should not expect equivalence with India. It has over $650 billion in foreign exchange reserves. We have $15bn, mainly rotating deposits provided by 'friendly countries'. A nuclear-tipped peace is our only affordable option.

Our concern, and the world's, should now be how to handle President Trump. Should his harangues be taken literally, but him seriously? We all have the next four years to find out. -- Courtesy Dawn green skills into their programmes.

Optimising COP29

Incorporating green skills requires strategic focus and institutional coordination. For instance, the National Vocational and Technical Training Commission has introduced some foundational green skills, aimed at building awareness of sustainable practices. However, these efforts require substantial expansion.

At COP29, where global leaders are discussing climate action and workforce development, Pakistan can advocate for Green TVET on an international platform. Efforts of organisations, such as the NAVTTC, could benefit from aligning with frameworks emerging from the climate conference, potentially securing commitments for funding and support from international partners. Such alliances could enable them to expand Green TVET programming and help Pakistan achieve both its climate and economic objectives.

There is also not much awareness of or demand for green skills among employers. Many industries lack an understanding of the benefits of green skills; their motivation to adopt sustainable practices is thus reduced. Critical sectors, including the construction industry and agriculture, still depend on resource-intensive methods, as they perceive the transition costs to be high. For instance, the construction sector, which contributes over 2pc to GDP, often resorts to energy-inefficient practices, while agriculture — the largest employment sector — has been slow to adopt climate-smart techniques.

These challenges deter TVET institutions from investing in green training programmes as industry demand for these skills remains low. Creating awareness and a demand for green skills within industries requires focused outreach and partnerships to educate employers on the long-term economic benefits of sustainable practices.

Many vocational institutions also lack modern equipment, which is essential for teaching technologies, such as those related to solar panel installation or sustainable agriculture practices. Nearly half our TVET institutions are under-resourced, highlighting an immediate need to upgrade facilities to meet the demands of a green economy. Securing these up-grades is challenging as budget allocations are limited. Pakistan's TVET sector receives around 2.5pc of the national education budget, which would need to be scaled up in order to match countries that prioritise vocational training. Private sector investment in green skills training is also minimal, and although international funding options, such as the Green Climate Fund, exist, Pakistan has to do much more to access these resources.

Investing in Green TVET can speed up both economic growth and environmental resilience. By establishing cohesive policies, raising industry awareness, securing funding, and promoting TVET, Pakistan can build a workforce capable of supporting sustainable development in core sectors of the economy. This shift will not only reduce Pakistan's environmental footprint but also position the country as a proactive participant in the global green economy, aligning with COP29's objectives and working towards a more sustainable future.

MCCI urges govt to make tax reforms

MULTAN (APP): Multan Chamber of Commerce and Industry (MCCI) President Mian Bakhtawar Tanveer Shaikh has demanded the government to carry out reforms in the existing tax system and reduce electricity tariffs, in light of the high inflation rate, the energy crisis, and severe economic challenges facing the business community and the general public.

In a statement issued here on Thursday, he stated that the tax deficit of over Rs 180 billion in the first four months of the current fiscal year makes it essential for the government to take timely and balanced measures to avoid placing further burden on the public. He emphasized that instead of continually increasing taxes in new and different ways, the government should implement tax reforms that would improve the performance of the Federal Board of Revenue (FBR) and address the weaknesses in policies.

The FBR should expand the tax base to avoid placing more pressure on existing taxpayers through new taxes, he said, adding that through tax reforms,

CM Maryam denies cancer diagnosis; confirms parathyroid condition instead

LAHORE (INP): Punjab Chief Minister Maryam Nawaz has addressed recent rumours about her health, categorically denying claims that she has cancer.

In a social media statement, she clarified, "There are vlogs and rumours circulating on social media suggesting I have cancer, but I want to make it clear that I do not have cancer. I am dealing with a parathyroid condition."

The clarification comes amid widespread speculation, particularly from vloggers and YouTubers, who claimed that the CM was suffering Expressing her thoughts in London, CM Maryam said: "The country has always witnessed the prosperity during the Nawaz Sharif-led government.

The PML-N is having a track record of steering the country towards stability." She said, "I had

Iran tells UN nuclear chief it won't negotiate under 'intimidation'

TEHRAN: Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said on Thursday that Iran will not negotiate under "intimidation" as he held crunch talks with the UN nuclear chief weeks before US President-elect Donald Trump takes office.

International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) chief Rafael Grossi said achieving "results" in nuclear talks with Iran was vital to avoid a new conflict in the region already inflamed by Israel's operations against Hamas in Gaza and Hezbollah in Lebanon.

His visit comes just days after Israeli Defence Minister Israel Katz said Iran was "more exposed than ever to strikes on its nuclear facilities" giving Israel "the opportunity to achieve our most important goal".

Grossi said Iranian nuclear installations "should not be attacked" but Trump is expected to give Israel a far freer rein after he takes office in January. The IAEA chief described his meeting with Araghchi as "indispensable" in a post on X.

Araghchi was Iran's chief negotiator in talks that led to a landmark 2015 nuclear deal with major powers, abandoned three years later by Trump.

Araghchi posted that their meeting was "important & straightforward". He said Iran was "willing to negotiate" based on the "national interest" and "inalienable rights," but was not "ready to negotiate under pressure and intimidation".

"We agreed to proceed with courage and goodwill. Iran has never left the negotiation table on its peaceful nuclear programme," he said. Grossi also met the head of Iran's atomic energy organisation, Mohammad Eslami.

Eslami told a joint news conference that Iran would take "immediate countermeasures" against any sanctions from the IAEA's board of governors. "Any interventionist resolution in the nuclear affairs of the Islamic Republic of Iran will definitely be met with immediate countermeasures," Eslami said.

Grossi's visit is his second to Tehran this year but his first since Trump's re-election.

During his first term in the White House from 2017 to 2021, Trump adopted a policy called "maximum pressure" which reimposed sweeping US economic sanctions that had been lifted under the 2015 deal.

In response, Iran started to gradually roll back its commitments under the deal, which barred it from enriching uranium to above 3.65 per cent.

Iran's head of the Atomic Energy Organisation Mohammad Eslami and the United Nations nuclear chief Rafael Grossi hold a joint press conference in Tehran.

French weapons system found in Sudan is likely violation of UN arms embargo, says Amnesty

CAIRO: Armored vehicles manufactured by the United Arab Emirates and equipped with French defense systems have been captured by the Sudanese army during the civil war in Sudan, Amnesty International says. The rights group said in a report on Thursday it had identified the UAE-made armored personnel carriers (APCs) in various parts of Sudan, including the Darfur region, where they were used by the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces (RSF) in its fight with the Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF).

It added that the presence of the military vehicles on the battlefield "likely constitutes a violation" of a United Nations arms embargo that prohibits the transfer of weapons to Sudan. The civil war broke out in April 2023 after simmering tensions between the RSF and the Sudanese army escalated to intense fighting across the North African country, where rampant human rights violations were committed.

More than 20,000 people have been killed in the conflict, according to the U.N., while 11.6 million have been forcibly displaced, including 8.3 million internally and 3.1 million people who fled to neighboring countries. Allies providing Sudan's warring parties with weapons are 'enabling the slaughter,' UN official says Sudan's claim that the UAE has been supplying the RSF with weapons that prolonged the 18-month war with the army has been denied by the UAE.

Sara Sharif's father admits beating her to death with a cricket bat

LONDON: In a dramatic turn of events at the Old Bailey, Urfan Sharif confessed to the murder of his 10-year-old daughter, Sara Sharif, admitting in court that he "takes full responsibility" for her tragic death.

Sharif detailed the brutal treatment he inflicted upon the girl, acknowledging he beat her with a cricket bat and metal pole, leading to her death on Aug 8, 2023, days before her body was discovered in their Surrey home.

The confession came during cross-examination by Caroline Carberry KC, who asked him bluntly if he had killed her by beating. "Yes, she died because of me," Sharif responded.

Human Rights Watch accuses Israel of war crimes in Gaza Strip

NEW YORK: Human Rights Watch said in a report released Thursday that Israel has committed war crimes and crimes against humanity in the Gaza Strip, including massive forced displacements that amount to ethnic cleansing.

A new report released by the New York-based rights group said people have been killed while evacuating under Israeli orders and in Israeli-designated humanitarian zones, where hundreds of thousands are crammed into squalid tent camps.

The report said the widespread, deliberate demolition of homes and civilian infrastructure in Gaza—some of them to carve a new road bisecting the territory and establish a buffer zone along Israel's border—was likely to "permanently displace" many Palestinians.

"Such actions of the Israeli authorities amount to ethnic cleansing," Human Rights Watch said.

The Israeli military did not immediately comment on the report. Israel's blistering campaign in Gaza has killed over 43,000 Palestinians, mostly women and children.

The army's announcement came after new Israeli Defence Minister Israel Katz said there would be no easing up in the war against Hezbollah. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on social media platform X shared an image of the "Golani" Brigade symbol—the unit the soldiers killed belonged to—a green olive tree against a yellow background, with a broken heart emoji.

Russia launches barrage on Kyiv

KYIV: Russia escalated its attacks on Kyiv early Wednesday, launching waves of drones and missiles in its first combined aerial assault on the capital in more than 70 days, authorities said. The attacks came as Washington and Seoul echoed warnings from Ukraine that North Korean troops had begun "engaging in combat operations" alongside Russian forces on the border between the warring countries.

Ukraine's air force said its units had downed four missiles and 37 drones launched by Russia.

Palestinians say north Gaza destruction is widespread as rights group warns some may never return

CAIRO: Palestinians displaced from northern Gaza said Israeli forces had inflicted widespread destruction on their home districts in their latest six-week-old offensive and a rights group raised concerns Israel might put some areas permanently off-limits.

Jabalia, one of the largest of Gaza's eight historic refugee camps, as well as the towns of Beit Lahiya and Beit Hanoun and nearby villages, were among the first targets of Israel's ground offensive in October 2023 after Hamas militants attacked Israel.

Tanks have gone in several more times in what Israel says are necessary operations against militants there who still pose a threat. On Thursday, it said its troops had killed dozens of "terrorists" and found a large quantity of weapons.

Former construction contractor Abu Raed, who was displaced from Jabalia, said Israeli forces were blowing buildings up remotely after booby-trapping them or sending in robots.

"The destruction before Oct 5, 2024 was big, but what happened in the past month can't be described in words.

Most of the camp was destroyed this time," he told Reuters via chat app.

"I have friends and relatives in Beit Hanoun, there are hardly any building standing there. Beit Lahiya also," the 75-year-old said.

Biden, Xi arrive in Peru ahead of face-to-face at Asia-Pacific summit

LIMA: US President Joe Biden and his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping arrive Thursday in Lima for an Asia-Pacific summit overshadowed by the prospect of a world embroiled in trade wars under Donald Trump.

Saturday's face-to-face will likely be the last meeting between the sitting leaders of the world's largest economies before Biden heads the reins back to Trump, who has signaled a confrontational approach to Beijing for his second term in the White House. Biden and Xi will likely "take stock of efforts to responsibly manage competition," a senior US administration official told reporters Wednesday ahead of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) summit.

APEC, created in 1989 with the goal of regional trade liberalization, brings together 21 economies that jointly represent about 60 percent of world GDP and over 40 percent of global commerce.

The summit program was to focus on trade and investment for inclusive growth and innovation for its members' common good. But uncertainty over Trump's next moves now clouds the agenda—as it does for the COP29 climate talks under way in Azerbaijan, and a G20 summit in Rio de Janeiro next week. "All that... the APEC leaders and G20 leaders will be talking about is the one world leader who is not there—and that is Donald Trump," Victor Cha of the Washington-based Center for Strategic and International Studies think tank said this week. The summits will be "about one thing," he told reporters in Washington: "What to expect from the next Trump administration on trade, alliances." Xi and Biden will meet on the second and final day of the summit that will also bring together leaders and senior officials from Japan, South Korea, Canada, Australia and Indonesia.

ISLAMABAD (Online): Foreign Office (FO) while refuting the reports of sending security team by China for the protection of its citizens has said such reports are part of propaganda to harm the friendship between the two countries.

Pakistan to have 62 mln diabetics by 2045; experts call for urgent policy action

ISLAMABAD (APP): Health experts agree that the consumption of ultra-processed foods lurking with industrially produced trans fats, sugar and salt are major contributing factors to the diabetes surge in Pakistan. Referring to the data, they noted that Pakistan is on the way to making 62 million people diabetic by 2045. The number of people living with diabetes in Pakistan increased from 6.3 million in 2011 to 33 million in 2021 and approximately 36 million in 2024, with an additional one million as pre-diabetic.

The sharp surge of diabetes has ranked Pakistan a number one country globally in terms of the prevalence rate of diseases where every third of adult Pakistanis is diabetic. If no immediate policy action is taken, the situation will further deteriorate.

They expressed these views during a walk organized jointly by Pakistan National Heart Association (PANAH), Heartfile, Pakistan Youth Change Advocates, Center for Peace and Development Initiative (CPDI) and others in front of National Press Club Islamabad on world diabetes day, said a press release issued here on Thursday.

Country Coordinator Global Health Advocacy Incubator (GHAII), Munawar Hussain said that sweet drinks are the largest source of the intake of sugar in the diet. He said that the liquid sugar in sweet drinks alters the metabolism of the body, and promote excess calorie intake which leads to type 2 diabetes and many other fatal diseases.

He said that several research studies indicate that consumption of sugary drinks has clear link with type 2 diabetes. The regular consumption of sweet drinks may increase the risk of diseased by 30 percent, which could be cut down by reducing its consumption, he added.

He said that due to the negative health effects of ultra-processed food and beverage products, several countries have taken effective policy measures to reduce their consumption.
